In Baltimore, yesterday, a detective had a man arrested charged with "cheering for Jeff. Davis." It was proved that the charge was false. The case was looked into by Col. Trevis, acting in the absence of Gen. Tyler, and in the afternoon the detective who had made the false accusation, made his appearance on Baltimore street, under a guard of two infantrymen, with a board about three feet long by two feet wide, with the following inscription:—"I am a detective—I am a liar—I was the cause of the arrest of an unoffending Union man."

The very large number of extensive frame edifices which have been erected in Washington and Alexandria for the use of different establishments in connection with the army indicates that an immense lumber business has been done within the past year or more. The wholesale dealers in that article in the palmiest days of building in Washington never had so large and profitable a trade in that city.

The N. Y. Herald says:—"Col. Lowell of the Second Massachusetts cavalry, commanding the cavalry brigade in front of the defences of Washington, has instructed his scouts and squadrons actively engaged in the pursuit of Moseby, to burn every house where a rebel is found."

It is said that some of Moseby's men made a raid on Monday night, in the neighborhood of Accotinck, and captured young Mr. Mason, son of Mr. John Mason, and carried off several horses.

A correspondent writes to us that in consequence of the destruction of the fences around the burial grounds, the cattle have entered and knocked down some of the tomb stones.

The work of laying a double track over the railroad between Washington and Baltimore, is going on.

The Fair of the Maryland Institute is now open in Baltimore.

The steamer Georgia arrived here yesterday with a large number of paroled prisoners.

Several Confederate prisoners, recently captured were brought to this place yesterday.

Gold, in New York, yesterday, 147½.

The Washington Chronicle says:—"We continue to receive communications from our friends in the army on the subject of desertions. They all go to show that the evil had become one of great magnitude, and been the theme of frequent conversation among all ranks, and not less of annoyance and dissatisfaction."

Hon. Erastus Corning, of Albany, N. Y., has resigned his seat as a Representative in Congress, owing to ill-health.

The steamer Diamond, from Nassau for Savannah, with a cargo of saltpetre and liquors, captured by the U. S. gunboat Stettin, has arrived at Port Royal.

Joseph R. Gayle, a well known Baltimore shipmaster, died on board the bark Paladin, of which he was the Captair, at sea, on the passage from Baltimore to Rio, on the 22d of July.

The newspapers report that there is a difficulty between Gen. Gillmore and Admiral Dahlgren; while on the contrary, it is said that the latter has written North, that there is no difficulty whatever.

FROM CHARLESTON.

From passengers by the steamship Fulton our reporters obtained the following additional particulars respecting the siege of Charleston.

The information given by deserters, that the Confederates were making active preparations to put Sumter in a state of defence, has been confirmed by the observations of officers, and reconnoissance in boats. That part of the Fort which has suffered most is now being armed with heavy guns. Hundreds of men are busily engaged in mounting them and repairing the works. Such was the progress that they made, that Gen. Gillmore directed the batteries on the verge of Morris Island, to shell the fort, and when the Fulton left, they were busily engaged in that operation. Some boats were sent out,—and it was discovered when they approached Sumter, that the Confederates was active there, to prepare for a naval attack.

The high sea, and the injury to the troops on Morris Island, has led Gen. Gillmore to remove his headquarters, and nearly all his men to Folly Island, which does not, from its position, invite the fire from Moultrie and other works. A number of guns have been mounted on Battery Gregg, and although shot and shell is poured incessantly on the island, the casualties are few. The soldiers,—of whom there are but a few detachments on the Island,—escape injury by remaining in the intrenchments and sand batteries. The gun which is to discharge Greek fire on the Palmetto City, is erected,—but it is believed operations will not commence till the 1st of November.

The guns of the Navy are silent. This circumstance is stated to have rendered the fleet dissatisfied with the Admiral, and there is a general hope that Farragut will succeed him immediately.

The Ironsides, and five monitors lie off Fort Sumter.—[N. Y. Express.]
