

The Week's Sign of the Zodiac

Sagittarius
The Archer

SAGITTARIUS
The Archer
November 22 to 28th.
By PHENOMENA

Natives of Sagittarius possess a wealth of attributes, few of which are faults. They are usually active, often working under the strain of excitement which is a mystery to other people.

They are cheerful, enterprising and generous. They are happy in disposition, humorous and witty, and are well liked because of their sympathetic natures.

These people are happiest when employed; they generally speak the truth—often on the spur of the moment—and they never stop to consider the old adage that "The Truth Sometimes Hurts."

People born under this influence are fond of travel. They enjoy life and are good investors; they will succeed as lawyers or statesmen.

They possess an appearance of good health, good features and complexion, and they are usually full of courage.

The men of this sign have mechanical ability. They are also good musicians.

The women love home life, they guard their affairs, they are bright in conversation, and they never harbor ill will or bear malice, although they seldom ever forget an injury. They are, as a rule, loved by all and have many admirers among the opposite sex.

The women make excellent stenographers, milliners, musicians, teachers, and saleswomen.

Indications throughout this sign, which ends on the 21st of December, point to better conditions financially and especially after the 28th of this month (November).

The fortunate day and date for those of this sign during the next seven days is Friday the 28th. This will be a good day to sign important papers, decide problems, undergo physical operations, or start on long journeys.

The adverse days are Saturday and Sunday, November 22nd and 23rd. These two days are liable to bring anything from illness to loss of money, and persons ruled by Jupiter should be careful that accidents do not befall them on these two days.

This sign is a Masculine and fortunate sign.

NOTE: Next week this forecast and character analysis will be continued, dealing with Love, Nature, Marriage and Children.

When Your Cough
Hangs On, Mix
This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

"What she do? Why, dat woman ain't satisfied but whut she gets herse'f a candy man and drops my bucks to him. I cuts up ev'y stitch I give her, and busted up ev'y stick of furniture—an' dat wasn't paid for, either. Den I busts her in de snoot and hightails it for de freight yards. An' dat's how I come to meet you down yere. Don' tell me 'bout love, boy. I knows al' about it!"

In spite of the little man's aggrieved anger, Carl was forced to laugh at his recital.

"You had tough luck," he said sympathetically.

"Yeah, an' dats exactly whut you gwine have ef you stays yere!" Hotshot declared uncompromisingly.

"Well, if nothing changes my present way of thinking, I guess I'm doomed to stay down here," Carl said, not at all unhappily. "I wouldn't change places with a king!"

A Letter for Carl
"Says you!" his friend jeered. Then he sighed deeply. "You know, Carl, I raley think you had oughta go back whar you b'long; but sense you done made up yo' mine to stay here, why I'se kinder relieved case I'd sho hate t' leave my Sal. Boy, dat woman kin cook plumb out'n dis worl'."

"Are you sure it's her cooking?" Carl teased.

When the men had finished with the corn Carl rode back up to Colonel Barre's house. His employer found him in the barn where he was rubbing salve on a bruise on one of the cow's legs. The old man stood watching him for a few minutes, then he coughed.

"Letter for you, boy," he said with attempted casualness.

Carl took the envelope slowly. He turned it over in his hands before he looked at it. He saw in the upper right hand corner the name of Bigal's bank, and he recognized it at once as a missive from the banker in Chicago.

He looked up to find Colonel Barre staring at the envelope as though he suspected something of its import, but he withheld any comment.

On his way to Toto, Carl did not open the letter. From time to time he took it out and looked at it. He feared what he would find within it. Suppose it contained an offer of a position from the banker? What would he do? Go to Chicago and a glowing future—or stay on the plantation with Toto, and sink into obscurity?

(END OF INSTALLMENT TWELVE)

(Carl now realizes, as never before, that he must make a decision between Chicago and a career, or the Louisiana plantation and love. He is afraid to face squarely the real issue. But next week—see the concluding installment.)

Delicious Recipes

Orange Pumpkin Candy
1 cup cooked and sifted pumpkin
1 cup corn syrup
2 cups sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1 orange, grated rind and juice
1 lemon, grated rind and juice
¼ teaspoon powdered cinnamon
1 cup nut meats finely broken

Put pumpkin, syrup, sugar, butter, grated rinds and strained juices of orange and lemon into a saucepan. Stir over a gentle heat until mixture forms a hard ball when tested in cold water, or until it reaches 254 degrees F. Add cinnamon and nut meats and pour into greased tins. When cool, mark into squares.

Grape Conserve
3 pounds grapes
1 pound sugar
1 cup chopped nut meats
½ pound raisins

Strip the pulp out of the grape skins. Heat the pulp until the seed can be removed easily by rubbing through a colander. Grind the skins in a food chopper. To each cup of skins add one-half cup water and boil gently until skins are tender. To the tender skins add pulp, sugar and raisins. Cook until thick and clear. Add the finely-chopped nut meats. Cook five minutes more. Pack in sterilized jars.

Last-Minute Preserving

One more day's preserving may mean the difference between enough of these goodies to last all winter, and not quite enough to see you through. Use fresh unmarred fruit, and liberal quantities of sugar—a valuable fuel for winter, that will supply warmth and energy more promptly than almost any other food known. Try the following for your last minute preserving.

Quince and Apple Marmalade
8 sweet apples
4 quinces
Juice of 2 lemons
Sugar

Pare, core and slice the fruit. Cook gently until it is tender, in a very little water. Measure the fruit, and add to it the lemon juice and two-thirds as much sugar as there is fruit. Cook rapidly until the mixture becomes clear. Turn into clean, hot glasses. When cold, cover with paraffin.

For TEETHING troubles

FUSSY, fretful . . . of course babies are uncomfortable at teething time! And mothers are worried because of the little upsets which come so suddenly then. But there's one sure way to comfort a restless, teething child. Castoria—made especially for babies and children! It's perfectly harmless, as the formula on the wrapper tells you. It's mild in taste and action. Yet it rights little upsets with a never-failing effectiveness.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given to tiny infants—as often as there is need. In cases of colic and similar disturbances, it is invaluable. But it has every-day uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever older children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset, a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.
