

GAMBLING DENS HERE.

COMMONWEALTH ATTORNEY'S ATTENTION DRAWN TO THE MATTER.

The writer of the article in Sunday's Times is to be summoned before the Grand Jury, and gamblers may be indicted.

The publication in Sunday's Times of the fact that the pernicious evil of gambling is openly conducted in Richmond attracted very general attention among the thinking readers of this paper, and the Commonwealth's attorney has already taken steps to have the author of the article summoned before the grand jury.

It is the duty of the police of Richmond to prevent infractions of the law, and to see that the law is enforced in their respective districts. The fact that gambling dens exist, for all intelligent citizens of Richmond know that such places are in existence.

The place known as Black's establishment, on the east side of Seventh between Broad and Marshall streets, is considered to be the most fashionable of the gambling dens.

At Bett's place, on Bank street, almost every afternoon a number of the police were seen there when they arrive in Richmond. There are several other establishments where gambling is carried on.

It was said yesterday by the chief of police that he thought there was less gambling in Richmond than there had been when this city had a population of 20,000.
