PIG-STICKING IN INDIA. front, which sent the spear flying out of his hand several rods lengths in front of him, and before he could stop the Ra. 2000 Arab, lent him by a neighboring Maharajah, the spear-head entered the horse's chest, and it was killed on the spot.

As an ardent pig-sticker I may be forgiven for advancing the opinion that it is the finest sport in the world.

I believe that there are many different methods of hog hunting on the continent.

The Indian wild pig varies naturally according to his race in the Vindhya Mountains, where I used to shoot them as food for my beaters; sometimes they were of vast size—bigger, I think, than even their Ganges pig.

A peculiarity of the wild pig is the straightness of his tail as compared with the curled appendage of his domestic brother.
