OWL BRAND
Special Plant
GUANO

We again offer this justly celebrated brand of fertilizer in 100 lb. bags, for tobacco plants. We have handled it for twenty years, and honestly believe it is the best fertilizer sold here for plants. Our opinion is backed up by that of many large and prosperous farmers who use other fertilizers on their tobacco fields, but Owl Brand on their plant beds. It acts quickly and at the same time grows a stocky and vigorous plant.

You will make no mistake if you use Owl Brand Special. It costs no more than the "just as good" kind.

The Northwestern Policy

A life insurance policy in the Northwestern cannot take the place of a husband, but it can preserve the family from want; it can lighten their load of care; it can build a barrier to the almshouse or against adversity; it can lay the foundation of home and independence; it can certify to a man's affectionate regard for his family; it can place his widow above the need of marrying for a home; it can add to a man's years by freeing him from anxiety about the future of his family; and it can heighten the esteem in which his wife and children hold him.

DON'T WAIT
LIFE AND HEALTH ARE UNCERTAIN

Your widow and orphans may become charges on others or forced to struggle for their very existence through your neglect.

NEWS OF PRINCE EDWARD AND ADJOINING COUNTIES.

From Sheppard.

Feb. 14, 1910.—The number of sick folks around here is unusual. Among the many who are on the sick list are, Miss Ellen Davis, Messrs. Ernest Jones, Spencer Gilliam, Mac Ranson, Herbert Baldwin and many others.

Last Friday, as Miss Marie Jones was returning to her home from Farmville, with her brother, the horse ran away, throwing both of them out of the buggy, but neither of them was hurt.

Mr. W. C. Trent lost a mule a few days ago. It fell into a ditch and upon a stob which caused its death.

Dr. Brown lost one of his horses by somewhat of a similar accident. He was returning from a visit to one of his patients; his mare stepped upon a sharp stake lying on the ground. The sharp end of the stake flew up and severed an artery in the abdomen, causing her to bleed to death in a few minutes.

About twenty-five people took the examination for census enumerators in Buckingham, and among them one lady. There were five colored applicants for the place. There will be ten enumerators or more in this county, as some of the districts are subdivided.

Miss Florence Jones spent the month of January visiting relatives in North Carolina. She is now in Richmond visiting her cousin, Miss Julia Sheppard.

From Eureka Mills.

Feb. 15, 1910.—A State organization of the Farmers' Co-Operative and Educational Union was formed in Lynchburg on the 8th instant. There were over 500 delegates and members of the Union present. The National president and other officers of the National Union were in attendance and made strong addresses. The delegates were welcomed by Rev. Mr. Paxton, of the Presbyterian church. Dr. Evans replied in behalf of the Union. The proceedings were characterized by enthusiasm and harmony. The following officers were elected: D. M. Gannaway, of Buckingham, president; C. Gordon, of Mecklenburg, vice-president; H. L. Petty, of Mecklenburg, secretary-treasurer; Executive Committee: E. T. Bondurant, R. W. Fuqua, R. E. Blackwell, T. W. McKinney and Mr. Spain. The Union is growing in numbers and has organizations in a number of the States. All farmers should organize for their mutual benefit, as this is the only way they will amount to much. M. T. McGhee, P. A. Denton and Lee W. Morton represented the Union at this place. Dr. P. J. Gregory died Sunday morning, aged 74. He was buried Monday afternoon at Ash Camp cemetery, with Masonic rites.

WILFRD, THE WIZARD, FEB. 22

Mrs. Noble spent Saturday and Sunday in Richmond.

Mrs. Verner Weaver and little daughter, Louise, visited here Monday.

We are glad to report Mrs. C. E. Gibbs is about well again.

From Crewe.

Feb. 15, 1910.—The $28,000 Y. M. C. A. building for Crewe is an assured fact. This means a great building will be sold as soon as the new is ready for occupancy. Hotel Oliver is being finished up with every modern convenience, and will be a boon to the traveling public.

Mrs. Sam Allen, of Felden, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. H. Hines.

Mrs. Nannie Miller, of Disputanta, is visiting her niece, Mrs. Ernest Morton.

"Work, Work, Work."

Some years ago we sat in one of the churches of Baltimore and listened to that prince among preachers, the late Dr. Babcock, as he told of the dignity of labor, the glory of work, and but recently we read with keen interest, an address delivered by the late S. Teackle Wallis, one of the most brilliant lawyers the State of Maryland ever gave to the practice of a noble profession, in which he said among other things: "We have all read, many times, and there are few of us who have not dropped a tear, now and then, over that wonderful and painfully suggestive poem 'The Song of the Shirt.' A brother humorist of Hood's, whose praise is almost fame, has said with truthful sympathy, that it may surely rank as a great act of charity to the world." You remember, of course, its wild and touching burden:

"Work, work, work
From weary chime to chime,
Work, work, work
As prisoners work for crime!
And yet how few there are who pause to fathom all the depths of the story which it tells. Our hearts are wrung, and our eyes fill as we gaze upon the single picture to which it points, of toil, and hopeless and forsaken wretchedness, and we forget that the woman who sits in unwomanly rags, plying her needle and thread, is only the melancholy extreme, and unhappy but legitimate consummation, of a social and political philosophy which throws its universal shadow over the more prosperous developments of modern civilization. We lose sight, in our pity of the fact, that work, work, work! is the great moral and maximum of the age in which we live. Going home, it is true with the cruellest severity, to the comfortless dwellings of humble and ill-paid toil, but laying its iron hand, nevertheless, upon the lives and the destinies of almost all classes of society. Is it not the theme of the books that men write for all of us, and of the teachings they have vouchsafed to us, for the phylaxial guidance of life, at the domestic fireside, from the professor's chair and the chambers of legislation? There is no ditty of our childhood which rings a more familiar jingle in our ears than that which warned us that amid our playthings, lay

"Satan finds some mischief still

For idle hands to do."

Would that we could follow the great speaker as with blinding sarcasm he scorns "money-getting" a peculiarly vulgar and unwomanly rather more important than the other, if anything," and Carlyle, who said, "Our purpose in this world is to do something and that provided we are always doing and in earnest, it makes no great matter what we do," and Longfellow who urged man to labor and wait" and "suffer and be strong." His heart's sympathy the rather went out to gentle-hearted Hood who lamented that bread should be so dear,

And flesh and blood so cheap."

Jockeyed and jockeying it is to most of us, a breathless trial of more speed. Our thought is of onward motion, and the compendium of our life system, for the most part, is that we get over the ground and then into it."

No wonder when he looked upon men, my brother men, the workers, he was ready to exclaim with Chas. Lamb, "Had I a little son I would christen him, 'Nothing to do.' The gifted speaker had been an earnest worker himself and yet would make heart-plea to relax the present tense of toil. And he was right. The world should stop now and then and catch its breath.
