

RULES FOR MARRIED MEN.

A Young Woman Wants to Know Why Doesn't Somebody Give Them a Few Hints.

I do wish some one would write a few rules for men, said a young married woman recently to the Baltimore News writer.

These precepts are all right theoretically and under ordinary circumstances are practical.

Why isn't there some one to tell them to look cheerful when they come in, and to forbear to grumble if dinner is a trifle late for any good reason.

According to the ordinary writer, a woman's whole married life should be spent in practicing expedients to keep her husband's love from growing cold.

This may not be the masculine idea of the case at all; the sterner sex may not really expect to get the whole globe and give nothing in return.

Now, poor, unenlightened soul, he has an idea that my side of the partnership has its own worries, and he tries to help me straighten them out.

FOR COLD-DAY SHOE BUYERS.

A Tip on the Effects of Zero Weather on People's Feet.

A burly man, with a red mustache, was seated in a shoe store in the shopping district, and was having a good deal of trouble apparently in finding something in footwear that exactly suited him.

"Not at all," said the clerk, earnestly. "I assure you it is exactly as I say, and for that reason we have to be very careful on days when the temperature is low or we would have a lot of purchases returned."

The man with the red mustache looked thoughtful and took a wider last.

WHAT ONE WOMAN THINKS.

The Feminine Philosopher Makes a Few Sage and Saucy Remarks.

Nowadays a music roll is just as apt to contain a saucy as a sonata, says the Philadelphia Times.

With the rudder of truth gone and the compass of faith lost, love soon comes to shipwreck.

Some women's idea of their rights is, all that they now have together with those enjoyed by men.

A man realizes the value of his wife when she goes away on a visit leaving him to mind the children.

It is not always wise to ask a child for his opinions in public; they are generally uncomprehending and sometimes uncomfortably frank.

The young woman who was presented from going to a dance because she dropped a hot curling iron down her back probably at the time of the accident danced enough for one evening.

An Ocean of Liquid Air.

Sir John Murray, in a recent address, drew a vivid picture of the time, in the remote future, when temperatures as low as those which Prof. Dewar produces in his experiments at the Royal Institution will prevail all over the earth.

At that time, of course, life as we know it will have vanished from the earth.

A Whole Family Cured.

Mrs. C. H. Kingsbury, who keeps a millinery and fancy goods store at St. Louis, Gratiot Co., Mich., and who is well known throughout the country, says:

"I was badly troubled with rheumatism, catarrh and neuralgia. I had liver complaint and was very bilious. I was in a bad condition; every day I began to fear that I should never be a well woman; that I should have to settle down into a chronic invalid, and live in the shadow of death."

THE OSTRICH AS FOOD.

Said to Make Splendid Steak and Soup, But the Boer Will Have None of It.

There are two dishes an ostrich farmer in South Africa will not tolerate on his table, though both are considered delicacies.

The ostrich is so extraordinarily muscular that steaks cut from them are not very appetizing.

The thighs are so extraordinarily muscular that steaks cut from them are not very appetizing.

Ostriches are dreadfully prone to suicide, however, and are determined fighters, and as they don't know how to conduct their battles wisely they are usually victims to broken limbs.
