Made desperate by the slowness with which he is getting his corn ground ready, a Butler farmer publishes the following advertisement in the "El Dorado Republican."

"Wanted—Some farm hands. I will give a dollar a day, three meals, and a custard pie and milk lunch at bedtime—feather bed—Sundays off—and permission to kiss the hired girl, for some farm hands."

When the land is dry enough to work again Prince Edward farmers will add to this the privilege of spending Saturday afternoon in Farmville.

The weather hasn't been fair of late, but that fact has in no wise hindered preliminary work on the Farmville Fair for 1901. Responses on the part of our business men have been prompt and liberal, and when the gates open in October, as they will, D-V, an exhibition will be presented worthy of Farmville and Southside Virginia.

The Dispensary Question.

Great interest was manifested in the arguments of able lawyers Monday on the questions as to the constitutionality of the dispensary law passed by the legislature for Farmville and its magisterial district.

Judge G. J. Hundley, of the Circuit Court, held a special session to hear a motion to restrain the town of Farmville from engaging in the whiskey traffic. There appeared for the plaintiffs Messrs. J. T. Coleman, of the firm of Caskie & Coleman, Lynchburg; Hon. W. C. Franklin, of Appomattox, and Mr. William Lancaster. The defendants were represented by Hon. A. D. Watkins, the patron of the dispensary bill, and Hon. W. H. Mann, of Nottoway.

The arguments were exhaustive, occupying nearly the entire day. Only three of the attorneys spoke, Mr. Coleman opening and closing for the plaintiffs, and Judges Watkins and Mann speaking for the defendants.

The arguments were entirely upon the questions of the law's constitutionality. Judge Hundley will not deliver his opinion before the first of May, and it is understood that whatever his honor's decision the case will be carried to the Court of Appeals for final action.

Death of Mrs. Wright. Mrs. Susan Allen Wright, widow of Mr. George Brit Wright, died on Friday morning last at one o'clock in her 68th year of age.

Mrs. Wright had been a sufferer for many months which she bore with Christian fortitude and resignation. She was nearly all of her life a resident of Farmville, during all of which time she was a consistent member of the Baptist church. She is survived by five children, two daughters and three sons; and also a sister, Mrs. B. A. Holt, of Richmond, and a brother, Mr. Lindsay Allen, of Madison county, Va. The funeral took place Saturday morning from the residence on Main street. It was conducted by her pastor, Rev. S. A. Thompson, who was assisted by Rev. Joshua S. Hunter of the Methodist church.

Mr. Franklin for the Convention. Hon. W. C. Franklin, of Appomattox has announced himself a candidate for delegate to the constitutional convention from the counties of Appomattox and Campbell. The election comes off May 23rd. Among other things he announces as favoring are, first of all, honest elections; manhood suffrage, without restriction, no qualification or limitation upon the right to vote not already provided for by the present constitution, unless it be to require the voter to prepay the taxes property assessed against him for the year previous to the election at which he offers to vote; that the people should elect their judges and all other officers; that there should be fewer elections, and several offices now provided for should be abolished. Taxes should be reduced to the minimum. The present school system suits Mr. Franklin, only he would have it more efficient, with longer terms, fee books and probably compulsory attendance.

The above is the gist of Mr. Franklin's policy, and upon this platform he offers himself to the voters of Appomattox and Campbell.

Much Smoke, Little Fire. Last Monday people about the street were much alarmed at a volume of smoke issuing from the roof of the store of Mr. J. B. Wall. It did seem as if the flames would burst forth at any moment. Men and boys rushed up stairs and were soon scrambling between the ceiling and the roof with the agility of mice in their eager search for the cause of so much smoke. In the meantime another of the excitable ones was ringing furiously the fire bell. The smoke came from a burning flue which was defective, and which might some day have caused a serious conflagration but for this occurrence.

Sunday in Y. M. C. A. Circles.

Sunday was a red-letter day in the history of the Y. M. C. A. of Farmville. At the 4 p. m. meeting Mr. Terry, a busy and successful business man of Lynchburg, and member of the large and prosperous shoe firm of Messrs. Craddock, Terry & Co., made the address, selecting as his theme a few verses from the 3rd chapter of John's Gospel, and then proceeded to emphasize the necessity of the new birth. His remarks were thoroughly scriptural and practical, and were attentively listened to by a representative body of young men.

At 8 p. m. a mass meeting, in the interest of the Association, was held at the Baptist church, and here again Mr. Terry made the principal address, in which he gave an interesting sketch of the Y. M. C. A. from its birth in London, 50 years ago, until now, and its unqualified endorsement of its mighty power, over man as a physical, mental and spiritual being. If all of the business men of Farmville could have heard, as they might have done, this manly plea for better business men, to say nothing of the speaker's earnest call for more consecrated Christian living, the Association of Farmville would never more want for a dollar.

Rev. Mr. Thompson presided over the meeting and Rev. Mr. Hunter assisted. Mr. Fallwell read the treasurer's report, and short but telling addresses were made by Drs. Smith and Winston.

The choir rendered some delightful music, and Dr. Cunningham sang a solo which thrilled the audience as with notes clear and sweet the singer urged to personal and earnest work. Cards were circulated and subscriptions were pledged to the amount of $137.50.

Cost of the Macadam Road. To the Honorable Board of Supervisors: Having been appointed by the Board at its April meeting, 1901, to measure the macadam road, I respectfully report that taking with me B. J. Harvey and Edmund Patterson, chairman, and accompanied by R. M. Burton and E. L. Dupuy, supervisors, and E. G. Buck, the contractor, I measured the said macadam road from its beginning at the corner of First cross street and Main street, in the town of Farmville, to its end in front of "Hart's store," at Hampden-Sidney, and find the distance to be six and three-fourths miles and one hundred and seventy-one and two-thirds yards, (6 3/4 miles and 172 1/2 yards)—and the average width to be 12 feet. I have compared the warrants issued by the Clerk of the Board with those paid by the Treasurer and find them to agree.

I respectfully submit the following statement of account:

Table with 2 columns: Description and Amount. Includes items like 'To 6 3/4 miles of macadam road at $1.00 per mile' and 'By balance of E. G. Buck'.

Respectfully submitted, W. H. EWING, Surveyor, &c.

Since the above statement was made by Mr. Ewing the balance due Mr. Buck has been paid.

Esther, the Beautiful Queen. This impressive Cantata was well rendered at the First Baptist Church (colored), on the evenings of the 23rd and 24th, before large and appreciative audiences, made up of representatives of both races of Farmville's citizens.

A master hand must have been on the training-helm during the weeks of preparation, for it has rarely been our privilege to witness an amateur performance when the intricate make up of chorus and solos moved in more perfect harmony.

Miss Esther F. Keeling presided at the piano and the combination of voices, heads, feet and hands under her command, were quick to obey her every touch, and we do not recall that there was a serious hitch during the performance of the evening of the 23rd, when it was our privilege to be present.

Misses Clara and Pearl Mathews and Miss Annie M. Bartlett rendered impressive solos, which were applauded to the echo.

The costumes were well chosen, the bearing of the participants graceful and dignified, and it gives us genuine pleasure to say of the whole entertainment, "well done."

BRIEFS AND PERSONALS.

Two Schools. I put my heart to school. In the world where men grow wise, "Go out," I said, "and learn the rule. Come back when you win the prize."

My heart came back again, "And where is the prize?" I cried. "The rule was false, and the prize was pain, And the teacher's name was Pride."

I put my heart to school, In the woods where wild birds sing, In the fields where flowers spring, Where brooks run cool and clear, And the blue of heaven bends near, "Go out," I said, "you are only a fool, But perhaps they can teach you here."

"And why do you stay so long, My heart, and where do you roam?" The answer came with a laugh and a song—"I find this school is home." —Henry van Dyke in the Atlantic.

If April showers makes spring flowers, what will be the outcome of April rain storms?

The HERALD still stands ready to offer a suggestion to pay off the monument debt.

Just as soon as the rain is over let's give Farmville a good spring cleaning—back yards as well as front yards.

Some farmers began to plant corn before the "dogwood leaves were as large as squirrel ears." We don't know what luck awaits them.

Our correspondents must be busy. A postal card communication would be gratefully received. The HERALD is a Newspaper, and must have the news.

If you will take a peep into the stores of Farmville you will be impressed with the fact that the HERALD advertisers are doing the active selling.

Farmville always deprecates a rainy Saturday, but she comes out of the recurring baths cleaner, fresher and better equipped for another fight.

The couriers from Farmville gardens are advancing. Lettuce and radish have joined the faithful salad and are meeting with glad welcome.

Our Southern sisters have been stirred by storm while Southside Virginia has been indulging in unbroken calm.

No matter what her future may be it cannot be doubted but that Farmville has been powerful "wet" these closing days of April.

Rev. Mr. Ware preached twice at the Episcopal church on last Sunday. The members of that church and others heard their former pastor "gladly."

It costs two cents to send a letter to an absent friend. Subscribe to the HERALD, and for two cents a week we will send the home letter to the one away from home.

The hack driver who smokes while driving in a funeral procession is a disgrace to his race and his calling. We witnessed that sight in Farmville the other day.

Richmond's Carnival will begin on Oct. 7th, and Farmville's Fair will follow soon thereafter. We expect to go to Richmond's Carnival and will expect Richmond to attend Farmville's Fair.

The citizens of Lynchburg can from their homes and offices talk to the people of 41 surrounding towns and villages along the wires of the Home Telephone Co. Farmville can't afford to be a "back number."

We are indebted for an invitation to the Sixth Art Exhibition, to be held in Masonic Temple, Richmond, Va., from April 23d to May 3d. Mr. B. F. Johnson is president of the association, and that of itself means success.

We have been having an excess of rain fall of late, but when we read of the destructive storms which have been raging elsewhere, we are authorized again to say that Southside Virginia is the favored section of the American nation.

Isn't it time we were having Farmville connected by telephone with the business centres of Prince Edward and all the surrounding counties? Having answered, "yes," as all progressive citizens must do, nothing remains but to put the ball in motion. This is 1901 you will remember.

Miss Bessie W. McGuire, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Joseph T. Clark, on College hill, for some time past, has left for Richmond to attend the commencement of the University College of Medicine, and to visit her brothers, Dr. Wm. and Mr. F. H. McGuire.

The carriage for the dead has been moving along our streets with unusual frequency of late. Does it ever occur to you that you may be the next passenger? and that when you go on that ride you will carry nothing with you but character?

We know at least one house-keeper who removed the stove from the dining-room ten days ago, and she and the little ones have been regretting it ever since. We had as well recognize the fact that in these modern days spring is an unknown quantity, and that "winter's lingering chills the lap of May."

Capt. Frank W. Cunningham, of Richmond, spent a few hours in town on Saturday, having run up to see "how the boy was getting on." It was a disappointment to all of Farmville that he could not spend Sunday with the "boy" and with us. Mr. W. H. Sands, a leading lawyer of the city, accompanied him.

The rapid growth of the University of Virginia in popular good-will is a matter of pride to Virginians who are especially favored in having it as a part of their public free school system. That splendid institution is the largest free-school house in Virginia, and many of our boys annually gather there to pursue studies in the Academic schools free of all expense of tuition.

Brilliant Marriage.

(Petersburg Index-Appel of Wednesday.) The most brilliant marriage that has taken place in Petersburg for some time was that which was solemnized last night at 9 o'clock, at the First Baptist church, which had been elaborately and handsomely decorated with flowers and potted plants in honor of the occasion. The contracting parties were Miss Nannie J. Macklin and Mr. Wm. B. Beach, Rev. H. W. Battle, D. D., the pastor, officiating.

Miss Mattie Leigh Cunningham, of Farmville, was maid of honor and Mr. J. J. Jones, of Petersburg, best man. The bridesmaids were Misses Martha Ollier, Belle Green, Kate Percival, Martha Vaughan, Nellie Whitehorn, Annie Bridges, Ethel Parker, Etsa Simms, Lizzie Bradbury, of Petersburg, and Miss Annie Belle Powell, of Emporia, Greensville county. The ushers were Messrs. J. E. Beach, brother of the groom; J. C. Robinson, E. B. Spottswood, W. H. Cooper, Robert Fitzgerald, H. L. Plummer, Brooks Rogers, R. M. Craddock, James E. Cuthbert, of Petersburg, and W. T. Clark, of Wilson, N. C. The bridesmaids wore white organdy and carried Easter lilies. The maid of honor carried a bouquet of roses. The bride looked very pretty in white satin and carried a large bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. She is a daughter of Mr. John H. Macklin, a prominent tobaccoist of Petersburg, and was district sponsor at the grand camp of Confederate Veterans at Pulaski, Va., two years ago. The groom is a well known tobaccoist of this place, being a buyer here of tobacco for the Austrian government.

The ceremony at the church was followed by a reception to the bridal party at the residence of the father of the bride, on Franklin street. The presents were numerous and costly.

Mr. and Mrs. Beach left on the 3 o'clock train this morning for New York and Boston on a bridal tour.

From Buckingham. SHEPPARDS, VA., April 24, 1901. Editor Herald:—The Democratic primary for Francis District, was held at New Store last Saturday.

Messrs. J. W. Heddlitch and T. H. O'Brien were elected delegates to the convention to nominate a delegate in the constitutional convention to represent Buckingham and Cumberland counties.

The present district officers were nominated for re-election, namely: Supervisor—Alex. Forbes; Constable—P. M. Forbes; Overseer of Poor—D. E. Pollard; Justices—L. D. Jones, C. W. Forbes, P. M. Jones.

The road engineer of Buckingham county has posted notices inviting proposals to work the roads of the county. I learn that the available funds for road purposes amount to $250 per mile of road! So that if that basis of expenditure be adopted the work will have to be spread out mighty thin.

It would be better to spend the entire road tax of Francis district on the one mile of road nearest Wilborn's bridge, than to attempt to keep the roads of the whole district in order with such an inadequate amount of money.

Mr. M. C. Elean is at Charlottesville, attending the sessions of West Hanover Presbytery, as the delegate from New Store church.

A Swing Around The Circle. Editor Herald:—I left Farmville on the morning of the 18th and returned on the evening of the 19th, having swung around a circle of some ninety miles, embracing portions of Prince Edward, Charlotte and Appomattox counties.

I got snap shots of the farms as I passed and took in other Southside Virginia scenes which were poignant with interest to me.

The Hundley orchard, clover, fallowed land and growing wheat were good to look upon, while the Armistead homestead shone out conspicuously surrounded by a sea of living green. The vacant spot, once crowned with the capacious and hospitable Watkin's home, awakened a troop of memories, and as I drove in full view of Union Theological Seminary I wondered again why it was for the glory of God that those buildings and that pure surrounding should be abandoned for the greenless and treeless suburbs of a city. The house of Capt. Fowles, nestling in the woods, always attracts my attention and excites my admiration, while its next-door neighbor, the old Worsham homestead now the property of Mr. Calkins, with its grass-covered fields, stately oaks and fruit-bearing trees, I reckon is among the most valuable properties of Prince Edward.

From the brow of the Western hill over-looking this place I caught a glimpse of the Tredway mansion, and the changes of particular section of the county came rushing over me. On the road leading from this point to Darlington Heights I saw an unusual amount of new grounds being made ready for tobacco, and on more than one of the farms the wheat was looking unusually well. A night spent at the home of Mr. James Elliott was crowded with comfort and pleasure and on this farm I found the best stand of clover I have met with in my travels, and three premium babies, the oldest not yet five years old.

It is a pity that Mr. "Cut" Watson should remain a bachelor in such a home and on such a farm.

The Anderson farms are just South of that of Mr. Watson's, and upon them everybody is "on the go." No where is more intense energy being displayed and no where are better results being attained.

Darlington Heights is the same place and has about the same number of people as the last census indicated. Mr. Shorter the leading merchant of the town is also a leading farmer of the neighborhood.

The home of my old friend, Clem Crute, which was recently destroyed by fire is being rebuilt, and my hope is that the home-nest will not be disturbed again.

Between Darlington Heights and Charlotte Courthouse, I only stopped at Taro, a new business centre where Mr. Whit Watson is still "on deck," and running industrial victories as is his wont.

The land about Smithville always impressed me as being admirably adapted to grain and grass, and this year is maintaining its reputation.

The village has undergone many changes since my boyhood days when I went to school to Mr. David Comfort, who taught a mixed school of boys and girls about one mile in the country. We marched in a body to church every Sunday, and kept step on the plank walk which we were always glad to reach in muddy weather. Rev. Mr. Terhune, husband of "Marion Harland," was then the pastor of the Presbyterian church at that place, and my recollection is that he preached well and didn't preach too long.

The old hotel, once kept by Mr. Wiltshire Cardwell, and where Governor McKinney loved to stay, has been burned, and a modern one has taken its place. I miss the old hotel, and "mine host" Terry as I do so much that brightened and made pleasant bygone. There are many new and handsome residences at the Courthouse, and evidently the business of the place has grown. There is talk of a railroad to Drake's Branch, a distance of five miles, but the business men of the place are not waiting for that to get the "hustle on." Here I met Mr. Leonard Cox, the veteran editor of the Charlotte Gazette, who had just walked into town from his country home, a distance of three miles, and was nothing wearied though he is now four score years old. This will put to the blush young business men of Farmville who ride to dinner notwithstanding the fact that their homes are not four hundred yards from their places of business. Between Smithville and Rough Creek I stopped for dinner at the palatial country home of Mr. S. C. Daniel, where I found the luxuries of the city with the comforts of the country in happy union. I must be pardoned for saying I almost envy the owner of such a home and any one will be content to live in the city who can afford to live that way in the free, open and pure country. The good wife cannot be lonesome in such a flower garden as I saw and with such a family of frying size chickens on the 18th of April, and surely the good man can have no weary days with an army of men and mules to plan for and command. Here again farming is done on a large scale, and yet every detail seems to have thoughtful care and attention.

Mr. Daniel is one of those large tax payers who wants his county to borrow money and build good roads; knowing well that the heaviest tax a farmer is called upon to pay is the tax on bad roads. When brother farmers agree with him there will be wonders wrought in Southside Virginia.

The lands between Rough Creek and Pamplin's are all good, well fenced and well farmed, and those in the immediate neighborhood of the depot are of superior excellence.

Pamplins is the depot of supplies for an extensive and profitable back country and always has an air of activity about it. I have been told that the pipe factory here is the largest in the world, and of one thing I am sure that I got one of the best dinners there on last Friday "I most ever did eat."

And by the way, the lady who presided with grace and ease at the head of the table during the meal told me that she was then without a cook, and that she had been only a few minutes over an hour in the kitchen preparing that meal, a most elaborate one. I don't know why cooks should waste time over the stove when the work can be so quickly done.

I drove from Pamplins to Prospect, and Prospect to Farmville in a driving rain storm and did not have much appetite for sight seeing. I did observe however, that Prospect never stood out in fairer or more attractive dress, and that some of the houses had undergone wonderful improvements since I last saw them. That of Mr. E. S. Taylor is now a "thing of beauty," while that of Mr. Robt. Carter has ever been a pet of mine. I know but few homes more attractive to look upon, and with that circle of bright-eyed and rosy-cheeked little ones to give brightness within it must be a happy home.

As I drove in sight of Farmville I saw a host of happy homes, and though the shadow of death had recently fallen upon more than one of them, I found it in my heart to say, "the lines have fallen unto us in pleasant places and ours is a goodly heritage."
