Harry L. Bassett.

Harry L. Bassett, born in Barton, and for the past 24 years a resident of Orleans, died Friday, January 24, at his home on Maple street after an illness of 12 days with influenza.

Harry Lee Bassett was born October 24th, 1890, the son of Henry Carlos and Belle (Twombly) Bassett. He was educated in the Orleans public schools, graduating from the high school in 1910, and from Dean academy in 1912. At Dean he was prominent in athletics, his rugged physique making him especially valuable on the foot-ball team.

November 10th, 1915, Mr. Bassett was united in marriage with Inez Elizabeth Waterman, of Barre, who survives him, together with two daughters, Marjorie Waterman, born Feb. 6th, 1917, and Betsy Celinda, born Jan. 15th, 1919.

Besides Mr. Bassett's father and mother, three sisters, Mrs. Mary Bassett, and Miss Eva L. Bassett of Orleans, and Mrs. Everett Willey of West Corinth, and two brothers, Wesley of West Corinth, and Harold, a

Mr. Bassett came to work in the Orleans postoffice in the fall of 1912, and was made assistant postmaster in 1916. He was a member of the local Masonic lodge, in which he had held office.

He was interested in agriculture, and took much pride in improving a tract of land which he had purchased, just on the outskirts of the village, where it was his delight to spend his spare time. He was also a lover of sport with his dog and gun, which was his play. He seemed equally well to enjoy work, and had a capacity for it which seemed to know no fatigue, his rugged strength of foot-ball days standing by him to the day of his last sickness, when he was felled by the deadly pestilence.

Harry was a likeable fellow, slightly reserved, he might not attract acquaintances as readily as men who court favor; but the rugged honesty of his bearing impressed one upon first acquaintance, and the ties of friendship were bound to grow stronger as we came to know him better. He wore well. A noticeable trait of his character was his loyalty. He was loyal to the home of his boyhood, to his father and to his mother, for whom he had a tender solicitude. He was loyal to the home he had made almost his last words, when he knew that he must go, being an exclamation of joy that he had done what he could to provide for the future of wife and little ones. He was loyal to his friends.

A neighbor, who was also associated with him in a fraternal order, expressed, perhaps, the feelings of many, when he said, "Harry was an honor to his order, an honor to his town, an honor to the government, which he served."

Why one so well equipped to enjoy life, and to make life enjoyable for others, should have been called so young across the mystic river, we cannot know. But faith in Him, who doeth all things well, and the belief that a life so well lived in the flesh must live on in its influence for good, should console those who must mourn the pleasure of his presence with them.

Mrs. Mabel Allchurch.

(By request the Monitor is printing the following regarding the death of Mrs. F. M. Allchurch, in addition to what has already been printed.)

Seldom has the community been so saddened as when it learned of the death of Mrs. Mabel Allchurch, who died at her home on Main street, Friday, Jan. 17. She was taken ill Thursday of the previous week, having worked as usual until noon of that day. She had influenza but it was not considered serious until Monday morning, when double pneumonia developed. Everything possible was done to save her, the doctor and two nurses giving of their best for her, but it was of no avail, and she died about 10 a. m. Friday. She was conscientious until the last and to the heart-broken husband and parents she gave a last word and a fond good-bye, then quietly and cheerfully set out for the "Other Shore."

Mabel Clara, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Dodge, of Orleans, was born in Glover, July 12, 1886. When a small girl, she with her parents moved to Barre, where she attended the graded schools. After several years they moved to Barton and Mrs. Allchurch completed her education at Barton academy, from which institution she graduated in June, 1904. On Jan. 3, 1906, she was married to Fred M. Allchurch, who was then in business in Orleans, and came here to live. For several years she has been a most efficient employe of Fletcher & Co. She was a member of Intervale Chapter No. 61, O. E. S., where she had very acceptably filled several offices. She was a young woman of exceptional abilities, making a success of whatever she undertook. She was true and loyal to her many friends, among whom she was a leader and a favorite. Deepest sympathy is expressed for the husband, F. M. Allchurch, and the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dodge. The funeral services were held at the home Sunday afternoon. Revs. Smithers and Hamilton officiating. The great profusion of beautiful flowers bore silent testimony of the love that friends had for the one gone on before. The remains were taken to Glover for burial.

Orleans Junior-Senior High School Mr. Erwin was a visitor in school Friday. A meeting of the school board was held at Mr. Taplin's office Saturday afternoon. Cota's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing party at French's hall Friday night.

Miss Gilles, who has been out of school because of illness, resumed her work Wednesday. Mrs. Sylvester has been substituting for Miss Gilles.

A class in Spanish has been arranged to meet with Miss Hayward one hour each week. The work is optional and no credits will be given.

A committee consisting of one boy from each of the three upper classes has been appointed to make arrangements for an entertainment by which to secure funds for baseball.

"Whosoever will, let him come." Because of the illness of Dist. Supt. Sharp, Rev. G. A. Martin of St. Johnsbury presided at the quarterly conference Wednesday night. For the same reason the pastor conducted the conferences at Evansville, Barton and West Burke.

The W. H. M. society met with Mrs. George Lyon Tuesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Marcia Lyon, conducted the devotions and business, and Mrs. Arthur Ordway, the program. Topic, "Among Negro Laborers." Mrs. Smithers read a short sketch from the study book, along this line. Mrs. Howe answered the question, "What will we do with the Negro?" Mrs. Ordway explained the obligations of women to the work. Mrs. Mitchell read a leaflet, "The First Days in Haven Home." Mrs. Wheeler, "The Conditions of Southern Schools." Mrs. Bartlett, "The Story of Annie." Mrs. Bernice Stone, "Put Yourself in His Place." A half hour was spent socially and the hostess served ice cream and cake.
