MONDAY, JANUARY 20, 1913.

Is the parcel post popular? Answer: Nearly half a million packages were handled by the Boston postoffice in the first fifteen days of the new regime.

One of Vermont's regrets at the death of Julia C. R. Dorr is because already Vermont's claim literature is so slight; and Mrs. Dorr gave the state a certain claim.

We are told that President Nichols will be "present in person" at the Dartmouth alumni meeting in Boston this week. But if the weather continues to grow cold he will need something besides that.

"General" Rosalie Jones of the walking suffragists' brigade, is threatened with rebellion in the ranks, a few meat women refusing to walk from New York City to Washington, D. C. A strong, imperious hand is needed now. "General" show 'em the spirit of 1876.

By the close of the present week the legislature should have made deep incursions into that grim 254 bills remaining to be disposed of. Let the committees work assiduously and be prepared to make report on the bills early in the week. Such a program is all that can save the legislature from the condition of lingering into the month of February when its work should have been completed a month or more sooner.

In requiring that Brandt, whom he released from a thirty-year term in prison, refrain from going on the stage to tell of his (Brandt's) recent criminal career, Governor Sulzer of New York softened the effect of the pardon upon the general public immeasurably. There was a fear that Brandt might inflame himself on the long-suffering public to that extent, having listened to the importunities of some stage manager who loves money more than decency.

Someway, we cannot think of that Bangor & Aroostook railroad strike as anything serious; yet we suppose it appears so to both the direct participants in it. Anyway, it isn't so serious as it might be, for we presume the potatoes are nearly all moved ere this, and the backwardness of the winter has prevented great lumbering operations, which precludes the necessity for moving much lumber at the present time. The striking employees couldn't have undertaken their disturbance at a time less embarrassing for the railroad.

VERMONT, COVERED BRIDGES AND MAPLE SUGAR.

In referring to the covered wooden road bridges in Vermont, a writer in the Boston Transcript makes the following observation: "The covered bridge is just as much a fixture in Vermont as are maple sugar outfits." The comparison is rather unfortunate and somewhat inaccurate. It is a fact that the old-fashioned wooden bridge with enclosed sides is very common in Vermont and that very prevalence of the structures may indicate to the casual observer that such kind of bridges is

National Bank Security

The National Bank is primarily a government institution, exercising authority granted by a federal charter and under the strict supervision of Uncle Sam.

The assets of this Bank are rigidly examined by the National Bank Examiner and subsequently by the Board of Directors, and the loans are carefully scrutinized. Periodical reports of condition are submitted to the Comptroller of the Currency and statements published accordingly.

The large capital and surplus, coupled with the conservative policy of a strong Board of Directors, must appeal to the business man desiring strong and efficient banking connections.

We solicit your business and trust that our relations will be of mutual benefit.

SHIPS AND SEALING-WAX

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "to talk of many things: Of shoes and ships and sealing-wax, And cabbage and kings." —The Walrus and the Carpenter.

Alleging that he was in a conspiracy with U. S. Senator Tillman against the executive of South Carolina, Governor Cole L. Blease has attacked Capt. W. E. Gonzales, editor of the Columbia state.

In the interests of euphony, the New York Sun suggests that the Greek navy proceed to sink the Medjidie without delay.

Local motion picture men who are dancing on pins and needles over the House bill now pending to exclude all children under 14 years of age from the theatre may begin to sympathize with August Meyer, a Bronx moving picture proprietor, who was fined $25 the other day for admitting a 12-year-old boy on January 11.

President-elect Wilson and Governor Fletcher seem to be of one mind when it comes to eliminating the inaugural ball. It is a common-sense view the brother governors take and the fact that the Washington affair would mean a cost of $85,000 in pension bureau wages alone seems to justify the next executive's suggestion. Meanwhile, Vermont women who missed the gala event at Montpelier may offer condolences to the wives of numerous senators and representatives.

Emilio Portaluppi, the former Barre man, who claims $16,478 for a Garabaldi picture bearing the Italian patriot's autograph, said to have been lost in the Titanic disasters, knows how H. Bjornstrom Stefansson felt when he filed a claim for $100,000 on the loss of an oil painting, "The Circassian at the Bath."

Says the Barton Monitor: "We notice the use of profanity is to be checked in Boston and see The Barre Times urging on the good work of the anti-profanity societies in Barre, all of which is a good sign and a pleasing one to the general public, we believe."

Barre people and others living in this vicinity whose orchards and shade trees are the better for scientific tree surgery practiced by Patrick H. O'Connor, will be interested in the following item from the Bradford Opinion: "P. H. O'Connor, a browntail moth inspector for the state, passed through Bradford Friday investigating this section."

An exchange says that Bennington's town clerk has installed a rectograph in his office. It now remains for someone (here's hoping it's not a town clerk) to institute the dictagraph.

While the "Older Green Mountain Boys" have been seeking to excel each other in the matter of lighting fires down in Saxtons River, let the parents back home bring in the wood and split the kindling.

Seventy-five years ago to-day, Congress adopted the "gag law." Off hand, who will tell the class in history all about the circumstances that called for the "gag law?"

Governor Sulzer of New York has promised the fullest publicity to everything in his administration and asks the editors of the Association Empire state dailies to blame him if they want to for any mistakes he may make.

Assistants at the Matteawan asylum are now entertained by Harry Thaw, who received a photograph and one hundred records from his mother. It isn't the first time that Harry's records have proved entertaining, to some, at least.

Barre police officers might solve a vexing problem by copying the example set by authorities in York, Eng., where the town's twenty drunkards are promised 85 apiece if they are not arrested in 1913. Latest reports say that every man of the twenty is over half a month to the good.

In an effort to elect U. S. senators, there are deadlocks in New Hampshire, Idaho, West Virginia and Tennessee. Illinois is in a deadlock over the election of a House speaker.

The Albany Times-Union uses chlorine language to express the following truth: "Light, heat and power are the three handmaidens of economy and every householder should welcome any move to cheapen the cost of living, now aeroplane toward the clouds."

It is a significant fact that nearly every young legislature during the past few months has started out with a proposal to find a reason for the coal shortage. The cost of fuel is still in the dizzy heights, although any agitation the statesmen may initiate is bound to interest a large number of constituents at home.

The following despatch wasn't culled from the current number of the American Issue: "Charles Schafer of Branchville, N. J., is taking his first vacation. He attributes his long life and vigor to whiskey."

Subject for discussion at the first meeting of Barre's newly organized Soap Box club next Tuesday evening: Question, Shall the mother-in-law rule the household or shall it be the meek, high private who pays the bills?"

A meeting of the Glengle club will be held in the Clau hall Monday, Jan. 20, at 7 p. m. Let every member be present.
