der the brow of the Green Mountains. These forges are even now constantly increasing, and with a railroad to transport the ore to them might dot the base of the Mountains from Vergennes to Rutland. With these remarks we now arrive at the statement of the Cos. which will be better accommodated by the R'l'd route with the statistics of population, property, mineral and manufacturing productions.—We believe it will be found altogether nearer the truth than that of the Watchman which we have presented. It proceeds upon the same supposition which is made by that paper, that the Cheshire road stops at Montpelier, and the Rutland at Middlebury contemplating Chittenden, Franklin and Grand Isle as common ground and affording equal advantages to both routes.

Thus if our estimates which are all from official data, are reliable, a tremendous discrepancy exists between the Watchman and ourselves. In every item in our table the balance is greatly in our favor, while in all things the Watchman figures us almost below competition. What would be the astonishment of a stranger who should travel over both routes at the inflated estimates of the Watchman? The face of nature itself would convict him of error and exaggeration. Notwithstanding at the close of his article he challenges scrutiny into his statements in a tone of defiance, yet we believe nearly every intelligent man in Vermont will stamp them as utterly fallacious. We are sensible that our estimates are to be regarded only as approximations to the truth; but we appeal to our readers if we do not approach near enough to correctness to show that the population and resources connected with the Rutland route are at least equal by any just method of computation to those of the Central instead of being by tens of thousands and millions below them. Indeed we know well that the agricultural, mineral and manufacturing resources in the vicinity of the Rutland route, without attempting to compute distant counties, even undefined regions in other States greatly surpass those of the Central route.—Compute mineral resources apart from manufactures and agriculture and Eastern Vermont would prove minus below comparison. Sixteen hundred tons of copperas from the mines of Strafford is the chief mineral freight of present reliance for a railroad. The parade which has been made about granite to be sent through the granite State to Boston who has a railroad access to the best quarry of the kind in New England is as ridiculous as carrying coles to New Castle. Indeed there is every reason to believe that with a railroad communication to market the tonnage of iron alone manufactured in Addison and Rutland Counties would be so increased as to counterbalance one-half of the whole amount of freight which would come from the soil and workshops of Vermont and seek transportation on the Central route. Fifty thousand tons per annum would be no surprising yield considering our great advantages for manufacturing the ore of Essex county in addition to our own.

But says the Watchman, "it is clear that the counties of Addison and Rutland cannot compare with other counties in the increase of business growing out of a railroad," and again "the other counties possess superior advantages for manufacturing." Is it not astonishing how far the inclinations of an honest man may lead him from the truth. The very reverse of these assertions may be confidently anticipated. Where can we expect the greatest agricultural and manufacturing developements but in counties which enjoy the most productive soils and the most extensive water privileges, and where the earth yields three-fourths of all the mineral resources of the State. A word to those who are in the least familiar with the facts upon this subject is sufficient.

RAIL-ROAD ASSOCIATION.

This Association was duly organized on Wednesday evening. We shall publish the Constitution next week. About one hundred dollars was pledged upon the spot to carry out the objects of the association. More has probably been obtained. As the skies brighten the spirit of the people is awaking. That a railroad is to be constructed is now as certain as any future event. Whether the Rutland road will be constructed depends upon the spirit and liberality of the people on the route.

The following officers were appointed:
SAMUEL SWIFT, President.
JEDEDIAH S. BUSHNELL, Rec'g Sec'y.
JAMES M. SLADE, Cor. Sec'y.
JAMES McDONALD, Treasurer.

Asa Chapman,
Joseph Warner,
Harvey Bell,
Russell Vallett,
Edwin Hammond,
Norman Tupper,
Timothy O'Flannegan,
} Executive Committee.

Important.—Mr. Walton says the grades on the Rutland route are worse than he anticipated. Whatever the anticipations of this gentleman may be, this we know certain, that after inspection of the Mount Holley gap, Col. Crocker declared in our presence that there was no doubt of the practicability of the Rutland route through Mount Holley, and that probably by close and persevering inspection as experience had shown him, a lower grade than sixty feet might be discovered. But further whether the grade was 40, 50 or 60 feet or even more was not very material in view of the whole matter. Walton gives up the 80 feet wall as a mistake.

RAIL-ROAD—ACTION! ACTION!!

Some of our subscribers may imagine that we have become somewhat spasmodic on the subject of rail-roads, and urge it upon the public with an inconsiderate vehemence. We cannot think so. It is not we who are at fault. It is those who with so rich a boon courting their acceptance are still so improvident and languid as to make no effort to secure it.—Aside from the tariff nothing can have a more salutary influence upon our prosperity than the construction of a rail-road in this region. And now is the crisis and the time to secure the object. Not a moment can safely be lost. Col. Crocker the distinguished projector of the Fitchburgh road accompanied by Mr. Felton the surveyor, and two other gentlemen commissioned by the Fitchburgh Corporation, passed Middlebury on Friday last, on a tour of inspection. From what we have recently learnt we have little doubt whether the Central rail-road succeeds or not, the Rutland road will be sooner or later constructed. Then let our capitalists, our villagers and our farmers speedily investigate and determine the amount of stock necessary for each to take to secure the object. Should every share be paid for by the people in the vicinity of the route they would not be the poorer. One million and a half of the money would be spent betwee Rutland and Burlington. A farmer would be able to pay for one hundred dollars worth of stock by exchange and barter, and perhaps at last find himself enriched by the oporation. The stock would be cash in the market. The farmers who hesitated for four years past to take up the stock of the Concord road can now take 140 dollars for the hundred which reluctantly they paid merely by asking. To this they may add a cool ten dollars per acre to the price of their land besides enjoying facilities of a speedy Railroad communication with the market for the thousand and one articles of produce half of which might be wasted or rot on their hands. No charity is solicited of subscribers. They are asked to write money into their pockets rather than out of them.

HURRA H FOR THE TRADE OF VERMONT.

As soon as the friends of the Concord and Lebanon route which terminates at the mouth of White River found that a disposition was manifested to continue the Fitchburgh road to the same spot, they awoke from their stupor which has long kept possession of them. Within a week EIGHT Hundred Thousand Dollars of the stock has been subscribed for in the country on the route. The subscription is still rapidly progressing and agents have been sent to Boston to secure the capitalists of that city. Fitchburgh will not give up so rich a prize as the business of Vermont the Canadas and the Lakes without an effort. But will they contend for it by extending their line up the Connecticut to the mouth of White River which makes their road 26 miles longer, or take the Rutland route, thus securing the most populous, wealthy, manufacturing and mineral portion of Vermont as their exclusive possession, and at Burlington takeing an equal chance for the business of the Lakes and Canada with the Central road should it be continued to Concord. We shall see.

DECAPITATIONS.—The Polkite administration has been guilotining a few Deputy Post-Masters in Vermont. The following appointments have been made. Wm. S. Mench, Cambridge; John Kellogg, Benson; also, E. D. Barber, Middlebury; (Vice. Charles Bowen removed,) Joseph C. Fuller, Danville; (Vice. S. J. Y. Vail removed,) Harvey Curtis, East Randolph; (Vice. Alfred Hubbard resigned.)

JOHN S. BAGG, editor of the Detroit Free Press, has been rewarded for his democratic services by an appointment to the office of Post-Master of Detroit. He, of course, is editor no longer.

☞ EDUCATION OF THE PEOPLE.—Our readers will be gratified to observe the progress of the measures adopted for the improvement of Common Schools. These are the hope of the state. The circular, addressed to the Clergy, appears in our present number, and is honorable to the Committee. Circulars were addressed, also, by the financial committee appointed at the same meeting, to a number of leading towns in every county in the state inviting them to contribute to sustain the labors of Mr. Palmer, and to make preparations for meetings to hear him. Returns in many instances are still delayed, though the measure is received with general favor and seems calculated, if made compete in this respect, to give the effort the fullest possible success.—This, we trust, it may not fail to receive.

☞ MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE.—The Commencement at this institution occurs the present year on the fourth Wednesday of July.—On Tuesday the College Societies are to be addressed by R. WALDO EMERSON, Esq. and Rev. JOEL PARKER, D. D. of Philadelphia. The anniversary of the Associated Alumni will be held on Commencement day, exercises by the appointees, to wit: Rev. THOMAS J. CONANT, D. D. (Class 1822.) Orator. DANIEL ROBERTS Jr. Esq. (Class 1829.) Poet.

LAWYERS. By arithmetic, we see from the Tribune at the recent session of the New York Supreme Court held in New York City 150 Counsellors and Attorneys were admitted to the bar.

FROM MEXICO.—The New Orleans papers have advices one day later from Vera Cruz. The U. S. squadron had arrived, and made a considerable sensation. From the interior it was reported that the earthquake shocks continued, but no particulars are given. The Bee says:—

With respect to Texas, the Mexican Government appears disposed to recognize her independence, and is willing to select France and England as umpires. Such is the tenor of our information.

A propositon was before the Congress, to discontinue proceedings against Santa Anna if he would go into voluntary banishment for ten years.

From the N. O. Picayune.
LATER FROM TEXAS.

The steamship New York, Capt. Wright, arrived at New Orleans from Galvestown, whence she sailed on the 6th inst. She brings us papers from Galveston to the 7th. Among her passengers were Major Donelson, the U. S. Charge, and Gov. Yell, of Arkansas.

Gen. Houston arrived at Galveston on the 3rd, from his farm on the Trinity. He proposed to visit the seat of Government of Texas, will then come at once to the United States, he being extremely solicitious to see Gen. Jackson once again before the death of the latter. He yields, says the Picayune, to annexation as a matter of necessity, if not of choice.

There is no limit to the enthusiasm of the people of Texas in regard to annexation.—The only trouble with them appears to be, whether to meet in Convention & form a Constitution for the "State of Texas" prior or subsequent to the meeting of Congress.

The papers contain ample reports of public meetings, declarative of the feelings of the people in regard to annexation. There is no occasion for these reports, so nearly unanimous are the sentiments of the whole country.

The Texans already regard themselves as part of the United States, and, proud of the Union, are only impatient that any delays should be interposed to its completion. Even the papers opposed to annexation but insinuate their objections; they see see it must take place, and refrain from any open resistance to it. If we can judge from the tone of the press and verbal communications, not all the diplomatic resources of the world can sway at all the general mind of Texas.

"THE CULTIVATOR is," says the Auburn Journal, "by all comparison the best agricultural paper in the Union." "We speak advisedly," says the Northern Avocate, "when we give THE CULTIVATOR the pre-eminence in point of authority of agricultural knowledge, in every thing which appertains to the farmer or the farming interest."
