

H. BELL, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR. TERMS OF TENTH VOLUME. Single subscribers, $2.00. In advance, $1.00. For the year, $10.00. For the year, $10.00. For the year, $10.00.

The Vermont Galaxy

THE GALAXY, IS PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY MORNING IN STEWART'S BUILDINGS, BY JUSTUS COBB, BY WHOM ALL ORDERS ARE PRINTED. BOOKS, Handbills, Cards, Banks, &c. &c. &c. Of every description will be neatly and fashionably executed, at short notice.

VOL. X. MIDDLEBURY, VT.—WEDNESDAY, JULY 16, 1845. NUMBER 11.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE LAMENT OF THE WIDOWED INEBRIATE.

I'm thinking on thy smile, Mary— Thy bright and trusting smile, In the morning when youth and love, Errows came— or guile; When thine arms were twined about my neck, And mine eyes looked into thine, And the heart that throbb'd for me alone, Was nestling close to mine!

Helen and the Young Doctor.

The town of A— certainly boasted of no lovelier one than Helen Edwards—deep, dark eyes, in which you could fancy impetuous depths of feeling, hair black and glossy, and features most classically regular. The artillery of Cupid, which we hear so much about, seems to have been invented before the discovery of fire-arms, and the arrows he discharged at the heart of Helen had little effect. In truth, all the young gentlemen of the town considered her decidedly cruel. She had lots of verses in her portfolio, asserting that fact.

A Cow in a Box—alias, A Cough in the Chest.

We were not a little amused at the Phonographic exhibition, the other evening, by a story told by Prof. Church with reference to the difficulty he had to meet in learning to pronounce the English language, whose barbarous orthography is so totally at variance with its elementary sounds. The gentleman said that the first time he ever visited London, he caught a cold on the passage. He had studied English at the French University, and made about as much progress in giving correct sounds to the words, as a green Yankee might have done in the French tongue with nothing but a Dictionary for a guide. Some things he knew and some things he did not know; one thing however, he felt, and that was he needed a physician to cure his cold. Accordingly he sent for one, and in the interim, wishing to show Dr. John Bull how well he could talk English, he took Nougat and found that 'tous' was 'cough,' in the latter tongue.

AGRICULTURAL.

FARMING IN VERMONT.

In the month of May last, we had the pleasure of making an excursion to the "Green Mountain State." To one who, like the writer, has been for several years accustomed mostly to the comparatively level surface of a portion of the "great valley" of the west the physical features of Vermont are striking and impressive. The different geological character of the two sections, forms a wide contrast in their surface and aspect—the primitive region we have lately visited, being, to the traveler capable of appreciating the attractions of nature, much the most interesting. There is, it is true, beauty of surface to be met with in the west—the "rolling" prairie, the shady "openings," and in other sections the dark primeval forests, are certainly beautiful; but the scenery seldom, if ever, rises to the grand and sublime. In the west, the elevated portions of the surface have but little variety; what are called hills appearing to have been formed by a surface originally washed by rains from the valleys, leaving the tops of the hills on a general level. Here, the upheavings of the earth have given to its surface an almost endless variation, elevations of different altitudes, from the green hills, whose grassy sides, even in the most sultry heats of summer, are freshened by the ever-gushing fountain, to the hoary mountain, whose lofty summit arrests the career of the storm-cloud.

THE BRAZILIAN COURT.

We have received a letter from King Lich gives the following sketch of the etiquette of the Court of Brazil: * * * Mr. Wise has been presented to the Imperial Court of Brazil, and is now installed Minister Plenipotentiary of the U. States. One of the party gave us a few days since a description of his reception by the Emperor and his Court. He was accompanied by Mr. Walsh, the secretary of legation, and one of our naval officers, all dressed in full uniform—swords, cocked hats, &c. They were driven to the palace in a splendid barouche and four; on arriving at the palace they were bowed into ante-room—soon after which they were conducted to the door of the reception room, where the Emperor and some of his principal officers were in waiting to receive them. On entering the door they stopped and made a bow, the secretary of legation, and one of our naval officers, all dressed in full uniform—swords, cocked hats, &c. They were driven to the palace in a splendid barouche and four; on arriving at the palace they were bowed into ante-room—soon after which they were conducted to the door of the reception room, where the Emperor and some of his principal officers were in waiting to receive them. On entering the door they stopped and made a bow, the secretary of legation, and one of our naval officers, all dressed in full uniform—swords, cocked hats, &c. They were driven to the palace in a splendid barouche and four; on arriving at the palace they were bowed into ante-room—soon after which they were conducted to the door of the reception room, where the Emperor and some of his principal officers were in waiting to receive them.

ANOTHER CURTAIN LECTURE.

Mr. Caudle has remained down stairs till past one, with a friend. A pretty time of night to come to bed, Mr. Caudle. Ugh!—as cold as any ice. Enough to give any woman her death, I'm sure. What! I should have looked up the candle, indeed! If I had't I have no doubt the folks would have said to-night, 'It's all very well for you, Caudle, to bring people home; but I wish first you'd think what's for supper. That beautiful leg of pork would have served for our dinner to-morrow—and now it's gone. I can't keep the house upon the money, and I won't pretend to do it, if you bring a mob of people every night to clear the cupboard. I wonder who'll be so ready to give you a supper when you want one; for want one you will, unless you change your plans. Don't tell me! I know 'em right. You'll first be eaten up, and then you'll be laughed at. I know the world.—No, indeed, Mr. Caudle, I don't think of every body; don't say that. But I can't see a leg of pork eaten up in that way, without asking myself what it's all to end in, if such things go on. And then he must have pickles too. Couldn't be content with my cabbage—no, Mr. Caudle, I won't let you go any more, unless you kept me awake till this time. Why did I keep awake? How do you suppose I kept awake? How do you suppose I could go to sleep when I knew that man was below, drinking up your sustenance in brandy and water? For he couldn't be content upon decent, wholesome gin. Upon my word, you ought to be a rich man, Caudle. You have such very fine friends. I wonder who gives you brandy when you go out? No, indeed, he couldn't be content with my pickled cabbage—and I should like to know who makes better—but he must have walnuts. And you, too, like a fool—now don't you think to stop me, Mr. Caudle; a poor woman may be trampled to death, and never say a word—you, too, like a fool—I wonder who'd do it for you—to insist upon the girl going out for pickled walnuts. And in such a night too! With snow upon the ground, and you out of doors, feeling you are Mr. Caudle! But the world doesn't know you as do—fine feelings, indeed! to send the poor girl out, when I told you, and told your friend, too—a very pretty brute he is, I'm sure—that the poor girl had got a cold and chilblains on her toes. But I know what will be the end of that; she'll be laid up, and we shall have a nice doctor's bill. And you'll pay it, I can tell you for I won't. Wish you were out of the world? Oh yes—that's all very easy. I'm sure you wish it. Don't swear in that dreadful way! Ain't you afraid that the bed will open and swallow you? And don't swing about in that way. That will do no good. That won't bring back the leg of pork, and the brandy you've poured down both your throats. Oh! I know it! I'm sure of it. I only recollect it when I get into bed—and if I had't been so cold, you'd see me down stairs again, I can tell you—I recollect it, and a pretty two hours I've passed, that I left the key in the cupboard—and I knew it—I could see by the manner of you, when you came into the room—I know you've got at the other bottle. However, there's one comfort; you told me to send for the best brandy—the very best—for your other friend who called last Wednesday. Ha! ha! 'twas British—the cheap British—and nice and ill I hope the pair of you will be to-morrow. There's only the bare bone of the leg of pork, but you'll get nothing else for dinner, I can tell you. It's a dreadful thought that the poor children should go without—but if they have such a father, they, poor things, must suffer for it. Nearly a whole leg of pork and a pint of brandy!—A pint of brandy and a leg of pork. A leg of—of—brandy—pint—

THE ALPACA.

From Mr. Ellsworth's Reports it appears that the amount of Alpaca wool consumed by British manufacturers from its introduction in 1822 up to 1844 amounts to £2,000,000. The price varies from 1s 6d to 2s 6d per lb., and the average weight of the fleece is about 10 pounds. This animal is a native of the mountains of Peru, and of the same species with the Lama, which is chiefly valued as a beast of burden. The Alpaca is a wool bearing animal, and large flocks of it were formerly owned by the Incas, sovereigns of that country, and other wealthy inhabitants. It is said to be remarkable for its hardy constitution and its gentle, docile disposition, becoming strongly attached to its keepers.—It is represented as being less affected by a change of condition than any other animal, being most readily to adapt itself to almost any climate and food. It is easily domesticated in any home where it meets with kindness. The wool is fine and silky, and peculiarly adapted to the manufacture of fine woollen fabrics. Their flesh is also said to be very valuable as an article of food. It would probably thrive well on the Alleghany ridges, the Cumberland mountains, and the hills of New England, to say nothing of the Rocky mountains so ardently coveted by many.—Clem. Her.

WELL ANSWERED.

A young wife remonstrated with her husband, a dissipated spendthrift, on his conduct. "My love," said he, "I am only like the prodigal son; I shall reform by and by." "And I will be like the prodigal son, too," she replied, "for I will arise and go to my father." "And off she went.

WELL SUPPLIED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.

WELL PROVIDED.

The people of Springfield, Mass., are well supplied with churches. The Republican says they have twenty-two, comprising every denomination existing in this country. The population, according to the census just taken, is 14,703; the average number of families is 2,479, showing an average of about six persons each, and a church to every 112 families.