Congressional News.

WASHINGTON, April 1.

SENATE.

Mr. Mrson, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported a Joint Resolution amending the Act of March, 1855, to remodel the Diplomatic and Consular system of the United States. He explained that the resolution proposed to change that feature of the Act which seemed to make it mandatory on the President to elevate all our Foreign Ministers Resident to Ministers Plenipotentiary, and to fix the salary of each mission. Congress had no power to command, but could only recommend this to the President.

The Resolution was adopted.

Mr. Clayton resumed his remarks on the action of the Naval Board, and in order to prove that it was no disgrace to officers to be placed on the retired list, mentioned the fact that in England the heroes of the Nile and Trafalgar were relieved from actual service, and received less pay than officers of the same grade on our retired list. He replied to Mr. Houston's attacks on Com. Pendergrast, Capt. Dupont, and other naval officers.

Mr. Bell of Tenn. sustained, in the main, the proceedings of the Board, and and earnestly defended Lieut. Maury from charges made in Mr. Clayton's speech.

Mr. Fitzpatrick asked Mr. Bell to give way for a motion to adjourn.

Mr. Clayton—I hope the Senator will finish now.

Mr. Bell—I shall finish at some time. (Laughter.)

Mr. Clayton—(Earnestly.) The attack has been made and I have a right to answer now.

Mr. Mason—I move the Senate adjourn.

Mr. Clayton—(Excitedly.) No adjournment; I am not bound to listen to the insolence of that man; it is unjust, sir. (Sensation.)

Mr. Mason—I call the Senator to order.

The President rapped briskly with his hammer in the mean time.

Mr. Bell—Let him go on with his insolence. I have heard of that gentleman before (pointing significantly with his finger at Mr. Clayton).

While they were thus engaged in colloquy, the Chair put the question and declared the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.

Among the reports from standing committees were bills establishing additional land districts in Kansas and Nebraska.

Ten thousand copies of the Central American correspondence, together with that between the United States and Great Britain on the Arbitration and Enlistment questions were ordered to be printed; also, the same number of copies of the document on the commercial relations of the United States with all foreign nations, statistics, comparative tariffs, &c.

The bill appropriating $300,000 for restoring and maintaining the peaceable disposition of the Indian tribes on the Pacific coast, and $120,000 for the purchase of gunpowder, was passed.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the President's Message and Mr. Warner vindicated the rights of the South in the common territories of the United States.

Mr. Allison spoke in opposition to the extension of Slavery. Adjourned.

WASHINGTON, April 2.

SENATE.

The Kansas resolution was postponed.

Mr. Fessenden spoke on the Bulwer-Clayton treaty, in opposition to harsh measures, and in favor of setling the differences between this government and Great Britain by negotiation.

Mr. Cass argued that we should take a decided stand for the maintenance of our rights.

Mr. Seward reported the House resolution for the enlargement of the Custom House, Post Office and Federal Court Buildings at Buffalo. Passed.

Mr. Mason, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported a joint resolution, to permit Dr. Kane and the officers associated with him in the expedition in the Arctic Seas, to accept such tokens of acknowledgement therefor as the government of Great Britain may please to present, in accordance with its wishes on the subject.

Mr. Cass hoped the resolution would be immediately passed.

Mr. Crittenden was quite willing that all proper acknowledgement should be given to Dr. Kane, but he thought it a bad precedent to depart from ancient usage.

Mr. Seward inquired whether, under the resolution, a title of nobility could not be conferred on Dr. Kane?

Mr. Mason had no idea that the British Government would think of offering an acknowledgement of that kind, which it might well suppose would be unwelcome to a citizen of the United States.

Mr. Seward desired to express in behalf of Mr. Henry Grinnell of New York, who furnished the funds with which the expedition was prosecuted with so much energy, and with so many sacrifices, and such great results, his hope that the resolution would be adopted.

Mr. Bayard opposed the resolution.

Mr. Mason admitted the wisdom of the provision in the Constitution relative to the reception of presents from foreign governments, but as that instrument has reserved to Congress discretionary powers in the matter, they could determine whether this was not a proper occasion to make an exception to the general rule. He cited the case of Lieut. Murray, who was permitted to receive a gold medal from the King of Sweden.

Mr. Butler could not vote for the resolution, unless he knew what the British government intended to give Kane.

The further consideration of the subject was postponed.

The three million Armament bill was then taken up.

Mr. Fessenden, in allusion to the enlistment question, expressed the opinion that Mr. Crampton ought to be dismissed because, after the publication of the official correspondence, it is impossible that he can receive that respect which he entertained for the representative of a foreign power. Speaking of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, he censured Senators for taking so much pains to prove that Great Britain has no good title in Central America; for if our construction of that treaty is correct, it makes not the least difference whether her title is good or bad, or whether she has any at all, since she had abandoned it all, be it more or less. A regular neglect to carry out treaty stipulations, although involving a desecration of faith, does not necessarily justify war. Great Britain does not pretend to interfere with our rights, nor anything conflicting with our interests; and we should wait until she gives occasion before we interpose in Central American affairs. If we expel her in that quarter, not one foot of the territory will be ours; we have no claim to it. As to giving a year's notice to Great Britain to vacate, and in the meantime to prepare for war, he was opposed to it.

Mr. Cass said he had watched the manifestations of public sentiment in England, and he could see no use in continually protesting, unless some more definite action be taken. He did not suppose England would retract at all, and it was not probable she would declare war against us. Why should she, when she has got all she wants?

The true question is, what ought we to do? Shall we continue to submit, or shall we take a decided stand, that we will enforce and maintain our rights.—Great Britain has changed her grounds three times in regard to the Clayton-Bulwer treaty; as fast as she is driven from one untenable position, she takes refuge in another.

Mr. Butler gave notice that he should discuss the bill as a war measure.

The further consideration of the subject was postponed.

Mr. Bell of Tenn. alluded to the rupture between himself and Senator Clayton, yesterday. He regretted the occurrence, as it resulted from a misapprehension on his part. If the Senator from Delaware shall say he did not mean to be personally offensive in his remarks relative to Lieut. Maury, he was prepared to make the amende honorable.

A voice—That's right.

General good humor prevalent.

Mr. Bell, resuming, wished however to have it understood that without such disclaimer on the part of the Senator, it was no bargain.

A voice—that's fair.

Mr. Clayton replied—He did not doubt the fact that the senator, with himself, regretted the disagreeable occurrence, especially as it originated in a misapprehension. He (Mr. Clayton) confessed that he felt warmly on that occasion, and was sorry for its exhibition. He could not bear malice after the frank and manly explanation of the Senator from Tennessee, and he was glad to renew the friendship existing between them for more than twenty years. He tendered him his hand with all his heart. Adjourned.

HOUSE.

The entire session was occupied in the consideration of the Senate's amendments to the West Point, pension, and deficiency appropriation bills, without coming to any conclusion thereon. Adjourned.

WASHINGTON, April 3.

SENATE.

Mr. Collamer (Kansas affairs being under consideration) argued to show that by the practical construction of the Constitution, Congress never submitted the question of freedom or slavery to the people of the Territories, and insisted that Congress had the power to legislate thereon. He defended the Emigrant Aid Societies, and read from South Carolina papers to show that the South had adopted similar measures, thus entering into competition with the North, which was altogether proper. Without concluding, he yielded to a motion to adjourn. Adjourned.

HOUSE.

The House was engaged in considering the Senate's amendments to the Deficiency Appropriation Bill. Proceedings uninteresting. Adjourned.

Foreign News.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

Peace is considered as virtually concluded, and the arrival of the Prussian Plenipotentiary was alone awaited to sign the protocol.

A son is born to the Emperor and Empress of France.

The British Parliament was not in session, owing to the Easter recess.—Nothing has transpired respecting American affairs.

Nothing has been heard of the Pacific.

The birth of an heir to the Bonaparte line is the cause of much outward signs of rejoicing in France, and even in England.

THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

The Peace conference has been awaiting the arrival of Baron Manteuffel, who has now arrrived in Paris. The Plenipotentiaries have held no meeting since last advices, and matters remain precisely as they were. Peace is now considered a certainty, and it is expected that the Protocol will be signed in a few days. Secresy as to the proceedings are still observed.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Parliament has adjourned over the Easter holidays.

Mr. Dallas has proceeded to London.

Mr. Buchanan has taken formal leave of the Queen. Lord Palmerston accompanied Mr. Buchanan, and, in this act the English papers see an indication that the Premier desires to stand well with the United States.

The King of Belgium has arrived in London, to attend the confirmation of his god-daughter, the Princess Royal, the Queen's eldest daughter.

The young Prince of Prussia, son to the heir of the throne, is about to revisit England, with a view to be betrothed to the said Princess Royal. Last year, when this youth came on the same errand, the British press scouted the alliance, but times have changed since then.

A deputation of the friends of Poland waited on Lord Palmerston, and presented a memorial, begging him to give instructions to the British Plenipotentiary at Paris to insist on the restoration of Poland. Palmerston merely replied that the subject should have the consideration of the government.

A verdict of murder has been returned by a Coroner's jury in the case of Drove, charged with having poisoned his wife with strychnine. This case is remarkable from the medical testimony that strychnine can be detected with certainty a considerable time after death.

SPAIN.—Accounts from Manila state that brigands were scouring the country, and spreading incendiary proclamations against the Spanish.

SWITZERLAND.—The Ticinese Gazette announces that the ratifications of the commercial treaty between Great Britain and Switzerland were exchanged at Berne on the 6th.

All is quiet politically in the Republic.

ITALY.—The Minister of War at Turlu has, by a dispatch of the 19th ult., authorized the commander-in-chief of the Sardinian forces in the Crimea to grant leave of absence for 40 days in certain specific cases, to the officers and soldiers under his orders.

PRUSSIA.—A dispatch by telegraph from Berlin mentions that M. de Heydt is to discharge the duties of President of the Council during the absence of the Baron de Manteuffel. M. de Ballou will take the temporary charge of the Foreign Department.

The Baron Zedlitz has been officially appointed Director General of Police, in place of M. Henkeldy. A subscription has been opened for the widow and seven children of the late director, 4000 thalers were immediately put down by three or four wealthy individuals belonging to the Bourse. In a short space of time the subscription reached 10,000 thalers.—The Journals of the Cross, or Federal party, are laboring to represent the duel as the result of a private quarrel.

The slightest ill-timed incident might produce the most disastrous effects in the present excited state of the populace and middle classes of Berlin.

The late unhappy event has produced a general sympathy with the King, who is supposed to be thwarted by the nobles.

LATEST.—The tenth meeting of the Plenipotentiaries was held on Tuesday, the 18th, and the Prussian representatives took their seats. The eleventh meeting was to take place on Thursday, the 20th; and it was rumored that Peace would be signed on Saturday, the 22d, or on Monday, the 24th. The actual business of the Conference is understood to be over, and a committee of one representative of each of the Powers is engaged in drawing up the formal treaty of Peace. The committee consists of M. de Borqueney, Lord Cowley, Count Buol, Baron Brunow, Count Cavour, and Ali Pacha.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Mr. Buchanan has introduced his successor, Mr. Dallas to diplomatic department, and on Monday the 17th, transferred to him the charge of the embassy.

Mr. Buchanan has gone to Paris, from whence he will return in a few days, and will probably return home by the steamer leaving Liverpool on the 18th or 19th of April.

Maple Sugar.

The amaunt of maple sugar yearly made in the United States, at the time the last census was taken, was 34,286,-647 pounds. At 12 cents a pound, the crop would amount to $4,108,388. The product should be increased by from $100,000 to $200,000 worth of maple molasses. New York produces much the largest quantity of any of the states, its product being $10,351,484 pounds. Vermont produces 6,349,357 pounds annually; Ohio, 4,588,209; Indiana, 2,921,642; Pennsylvania, 3,326,525; Michigan, 2,-439,794; New Hampshire, 1,294,863; Virginia, 1,227,665 pounds. The free states furnish the most of the crop. All the other southern states perhaps yield as much as Virginia. Even South Carolina, with its low latitude and low lands, yields 200 pounds annually, while Rhode Island figures but 28.

Vermont, in proportion to its poplation and territory, produces the largest amount, an amount three times greater than that of all the rest of New England. About this time, a bogus article is usually offered for sale, remoulded from the last year's product or made of common brown sugar melted down.—Free Press.

A DELIGHTFUL HUSBAND.—John Gates, of Leydon, Mass., was recently brought before a magistrate, charged with assault and battery upon his wife—a poor, pale, careworn woman, with four young children dependent upon her for support. From the evidence, it appeared that he had well nigh ruined her constitution by a series of outrages continued for a period of twelve years. He was bound over to keep the peace; but a few nights after, armed with a pistol and knife, he entered her house, threatened her life, and seizing all her little possessions, including her own and her children's clothing, he sloped like an unmitigated sneak and loafer, for Wisconsin, leaving his sureties to settle the bonds. Whoever in Wisconsin, may see John Gates, will please give him a kick and send the bill to this office.—Boston Atlas.

Execution of a Hardened Murderer

John Fitzgerald, Irish, was hung, at Auburn, N. Y., Saturday, for the murder of his father, mother and brother, while they were asleep one night last fall. He seems to have been a most obdurate wretch, although only about twenty years of age. On the night before his death he slept well, ate a hearty breakfast in the morning, danced and sung in his cell, and showed no emotion suited to his circumstances. When asked if he would like to have his sentence commuted to imprisonment for life, he replied, "No sir! I would step right out and pull hemp in preference. I had rather be hung than go to prison for life!" When told that a clergyman wished to see him, he said, "If he comes in here he'll get my fist—that's all! What good can he do me now? I don't want him." An earnest appeal was made to him to forgive his brother. He replied that he had kind words only for those who had been kind to him since he had been in prison. He utterly refused to forgive his brother, against whom he had sworn vengeance for testifying against him. He afterwards consented to see Rev. Dr. Ives, knelt with him in prayer, manifested much emotion, and shed tears. Still he could not forgive his brother, or acknowledge the horrible atrocity of his crime. While a deputy was adjusting the rope about his neck, he took umbrage at something that was done, and exclaimed—"Gentlemen! don't torture me—hang me, if you want to!" And then he added to some one near him—"I'm a pretty hard boy!" Turning to Mr. Morgan, his counsel in the trial, he asked if chloroform could be administered to him. The reply of course was in the negative. He never spoke again. At six minutes after three the drop fell, and with scarcely a struggle the hardened and unnatural murderer entered the presence of his victims and his Judge. Though the snow was falling and the weather wintry, hundreds of people, including some women, stood for hours about the jail during the execution, although they could see nothing, and hear nothing, and must rely upon imagination to satisfy their morbid curiosity.
