About Town and Elsewhere.

MORE ABOUT CLUBS.

Blasphemous or impious clubs were instituted in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries for the purpose of ridiculing religion. They were fraternities of free-living and free-thinking gentlemen, popularly recognized then, and remembered rather as "Hell-fire Clubs."

There was a "Hell Fire" club among the British officers in India, during a time of great mortality. At their meetings the principal toast was, "Here's to the next day's death!"

The Mohocks, (Mohawks?) were a club of Queen Anne's time. It was organized by some dissolute young men for a rowdy purpose of committing all sorts of excesses in the public streets, and alike attacking orderly pedestrians and even defenseless women.

The poet Gay sings of them thus: "Who has not heard the 'Scourer's midnight name?' Who has not trembled at the 'Mohock's' name?"

Strange to say, the Mohocks held together till nearly the end of the reign of George the Third.

The Supreme Issue of 1900.

The silver issue has only been emphasized by the proceedings at Kansas City.

The supreme issue of the campaign of 1896 is to be the supreme issue of a campaign of 1900—the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1.

It is again to be a square fight between gold and silver.

The only question that has excited the least debate or provoked the slightest enthusiasm at Kansas City is free silver.

On the other hand, "anti-imperialism" was only jugged to Kansas City and showed to the front by main force.

Tremulous Hands.

When the nervous system is weakened, the body generally shows the symptom of tremulousness in some of its members. The hands shake, the lips twitch at the corners, or the eyelids quiver involuntarily.

QUEER LOVE AFFAIRS

MAXIE is the queer name of a queer girl. It's not a nickname for Maxine, nor anything else.

She's a coquette, for one thing. There's nothing queer about that. In fact, other girls who are not queer have had love affairs and played one against the other and liked one for awhile and preferred the other for awhile, and murmured how happy they could be with either.

"You don't know what it is, girls," she said, "to grow up as an only daughter in a large house. It's one constant series of choosing and having to reject good things because there are more than you can use.

"I'm a little girl, before it had ever occurred to me that I could occupy any room except the little one with the two bay windows. I do believe, too, that I'd have been perfectly satisfied there in this hour, only I was told one day that if I'd prefer the immense front room I could have it.

HERE'S WHAT'S WANTED

A Citizen of Montpelier Supplies the Information.

Over half the complaints of mankind originate with the kidneys.

A slight touch of backache at first. Twinges and shooting pains in the loins follow. They must be checked, they lead to graver complications.

The sufferer seeks relief. Plisters are tried, and liniments for the back.

So called Kidney cures which do not cure.

The long-looked-for result seems unattainable.

If you suffer, do you want relief? Follow the plan adopted by this Montpelier citizen.

Mr. Frank Hardigan, who resides at No. 5 Bailey Avenue, says: "During a year I had sharp pains across my back, and in the morning I awoke with terribly to straighten. I had difficulty with the kidney secretions which caused me a great deal of inconvenience at all times. I tried several well known remedies, but they did not cure me. I went to Lester H. Greene's drug store, and on the recommendation of Mr. Meigs I got Doan's Kidney Pills. I have no reason to regret it, for they cured me when other remedies failed to give me even relief."

MAKING $100 A MINUTE.

The Large Sum Earned by the Prima Donna Mmc. Nordica in New York Recently.

The largest sum for the briefest service recently received by the most liberally paid of all professionals, the prima donna, was given Mme. Nordica on the occasion of her appearance in a concert at the Metropolitan opera house, New York, several weeks ago, says the Saturday Evening Post.

Mme. Nordica, among the soloists originally announced, was taken suddenly ill during a performance of "Tristan and Isolde" at the Metropolitan the Saturday previous to the concert. With her customary pluck she finished her performance, but was obliged to take to bed as soon as it was ended. There she was forced to remain until the next Thursday, when it was time to dress for the concert. She appeared at the Metropolitan on time, sang her two songs and was persistently recalled for an encore.

Her strength not being equal to a response she bowed her appreciation and finally took Mme. Patti's method of positive refusal by returning to the stage with her carriage cloak about her shoulders.

Once home she found no alternative but to return to the bed she had left to sing. But in the short time of her absence, in addition to keeping faith with the public and adding to the brilliance of the concert, she had received $1,000 for ten minutes' actual work. For her first concert engagement, Mme. Nordica, then a girl of 16, received ten dollars. Now in the zenith of her powers the largest sum received by Mme. Nordica for a single concert was $1,700. This latest achievement of $1,000 for ten minutes eclipses even that.

Next day all my knick-knacks were moved to one place and the bed was in the new setting! There wasn't a ray of light welcome for them or for me, and everything was so cold and matter of fact that I began to think I was like a person who marries for money or for title. I couldn't go to sleep in the great, canopied bed, and finally I stave back into the large room, and little room to see how it felt. Her little walls hugged me as I went in! I cuddled up on the broad sill of the bay window, and the moonlight shining through the muslin curtains sent polka-dot shadows playing over my white night dress, just as I'd always loved to let it do. There was no putting on of silk dressing gowns to visit the room, you'll notice. Just as I was wondering whether my brothers would laugh unenduringly if I moved back, my head nodded, and the next I knew it was broad daylight, and I went scuttling back to my grand apartment for fear some one should see. Oh, of course I stay in the large room, and there was a certain pride about it, and besides, there were the closet and the fireplace. But I think my first love knew that my heart stayed there, even though, for reasons of state, I chose the other room. The fact is, the large room never really sympathized with me unless I was in a vain, arrogant mood, and many and many a moonlight night found me in the little bay window with the spirit of the little room comforting my heart.

"Finally I went to college for a year. I was too late in arriving to get the room I wanted, and the one I lived in was just a makeshift. That room and I never parted until I was in the States. It was a mere matter of business between us. But before I came home in the summer I fell desperately in love with another room, and we were engaged to each other for the next year at once. It was a bewitching place. It had a tower window with a seat running all around it. I sat there for an hour one day planning the times we'd have together when I came back in the fall. I dreamed of serving tea in that tower with an oriental lantern over my head and 400 pillows for a background.

"Well, I came home for the summer all coated over with intellectuality and filled with the idea that book knowledge was all and style and elegance were naught; and the first thing I did was to leave the front room, without a word of explanation. My brothers said it was the new paper on the little room, but much they knew!

"I'm there yet, for I didn't go back to school the next year, you know. I'm happy in the little room, after a fashion; but sometimes I find myself thinking, when I go and sit before the fireplace in the front room and wonder whether I shall come to a phase in my life when I'll move back there again. More often, though, I go away from both of them, out under some tree in the park, and dream about that college nook I never lived in. It wouldn't say it in either of my home rooms, but I do believe that room and I could have been perfectly happy together if fate had permitted."—Chicago Daily Record.

OFF THE TRACK!—This means disaster and death when applied to a fast express train. It is equally serious when it refers to people whose blood is disordered and who consequently have pimples and sores, bad stomach, deranged kidneys, weak nerves and that tired feeling. Hood's Sarsaparilla puts the wheels back on the track by making pure, rich blood and curing these troubles.

Constipation is cured by Hood's Pills. 25c.

WATER-CRESS.

The watercress, although poorly appreciated, is in reality one of the best and most delicious salad plants we have in America. It flourishes for about three-quarters of the entire year. In spots where nothing else could be produced, and when once you have started a bed it will be with you for years. Like all salad plants, it should come to the table as fresh as possible and before using should be thoroughly washed in salted water. If to be used as a simple salad put in a salad bowl and set away when washed in a cool place to remain until needed, then add the dressing and serve. A simple French dressing is the best and a thinly sliced shallot may be added to the cress with good results.

This salad is very nice served in tomato cups. Select small, nicely shaped tomatoes, peel them, scoop out the seeds and most of the pulp, fill with the salad and serve very cold.

FROZEN CHEESE AND CRESS.

This is a summer delicacy served at both dinners and luncheons and needs but a trial to be appreciated. Grate a cupful of mild but not too fresh cheese; mix with one-quarter of a pint of cream to a stiff froth and add gradually the same amount of aspic, made partly liquid and beat the whole until it is too stiff to whip, then stir in the cheese, half a teaspoonful of salt, a bit of cayenne and a pinch of dry mustard, mix together thoroughly and pour into small molds, cover with waxed paper, put on the lids securely and bury in ice and salt for several hours. When ready to serve remove from the molds, cut in thin slices and lay each slice on a small plate on which you have arranged a bed of cress dressed with French dressing.

Another way of serving the cheese and cress is in sandwiches. Cut thin slices of bread, buttered before slicing, cover each slice with leaves of fresh cress, sprinkle with salt and just a bit of lemon juice; add a thin slice of the frozen cheese, close over another slice of bread, press together firmly and serve. If you are fond of eggs you may sprinkle the cress-covered bread with the grated yolk of hard-boiled eggs before putting on the cheese.

PUREE OF CRESS.

Pick from the stalks the leaves of a pint of cress and throw them in boiling water for two or three minutes; take up, press out the water and pound to a paste; add a teaspoonful of lemon juice, the same amount of onion juice, half as much anchovy essence, a teaspoonful of finely minced shallot and a dust of nutmeg. Rub through a sieve and when ready to use add six ounces of fresh butter to a cream; pack down in jelly ring molds and place on the ice; when cold turn out and serve as a garnish for cold meats or game. You may also use this mixture to make sandwiches, using any kind of meat filling you desire.

HOT CREAM SAUCE.

Take one pint of rich cream, four teaspoonfuls of powdered sugar, whites of two eggs, beaten stiff, extract of vanilla one teaspoonful, and one teaspoonful of nutmeg. Heat this slowly by setting the dish in a pan of boiling water, remove it from the fire, add the sugar and nutmeg, stir three or four minutes and add the whites of the eggs, mix very thoroughly and add the vanilla. Keep warm until ready to serve.

TO GLAZE A COLD HAM.

With a brush go all over the ham with beaten yolk of eggs. Then cover it thickly with cracked crumbs ground as fine as possible, or with finely powdered bread crumbs. Last cover with thick cream, with a brush, and brown in a quick oven. This glazing should be put on so as to make a crust half an inch thick, and will be found delicious.

SOUTHERN PANCAKES.

With half a pound of flour mix one teaspoonful of baking powder; beat four eggs smooth and add the flour and also a quarter of a pound of melted butter, one-half pint of milk and an ounce of sugar. Mix thoroughly; heat a frying pan very hot, grease, put in a spoonful of the batter at a time, spread evenly and fry brown on both sides.

BEAN PICKLES.

Pick green beans, those that are young and tender should be used, and place in a kettle to boil with a pinch of salt until they can be easily pierced with a fork; drain well in a colander and then put in a stone jar; sprinkle with cayenne, add a little sugar and cover with cold strong cider vinegar.

COOKED MEAT BALLS.

Take a bowl full of finely chopped cold meat, a few pieces of butter, add a cutting of bread crumbs, a little chopped onion, gravy, or rich stock enough to moisten the mass and a little table sugar. Season with salt and pepper and fry in balls.

SIMPLE MUSHROOM SAUCE.

To one cupful of stock add the juice from a can of mushrooms; thicken with flour wet in water; add a liberal piece of butter, salt and pepper to taste; put in the mushrooms, simmer a few minutes and pour over the meat to be served.

BREAKFAST BREAD.

Take slices of dry bread, moisten in milk, have ready two well-beaten eggs, seasoned with salt and pepper, into which dip the bread and fry in hot lard.

THE KITCHEN SUPPLIES.

By Anna Barrows.

In the days of our grandmothers the houses were provided with special closets and storerooms in which to keep a large supply of food. But we depend more and more upon the corner grocery, and are willing to pay retail instead of wholesale prices because we are saved the trouble of caring for these things ourselves and because the stock is constantly being renewed and therefore fresh. Yet there must be some place in which to store our food from day to day or from meal to meal.

A cool, clean cellar not too light, but well ventilated, is an ideal place for fruits, vegetables and the most perishable foods. The city housekeeper, however, must depend upon the refrigerator, a device of which her grandmother hardly dreamed. Like the stove the refrigerator should be selected to fit the place where it must stand. It should be in a good light, but not where the sun will strike it long and not too near the stove. If there is a cooler place just outside the kitchen that may be the best place for the refrigerator, but consider the number of steps to be taken between it and the dining room, as well as the cost of the ice. Also remember the number of steps required for the emptying of the waste water pan. When there is plumbing in the house the refrigerator is sometimes connected with the pipes. Such connection should not be direct, but the water from the ice may escape into a basin placed above the pipes. Ice should be clean before it is placed in the ice box, but with all care in that direction the escape pipes need frequent flushing with clean and occasionally with boiling water. When the different compartments of the refrigerator can be taken out and scalded it is a simple matter to keep foods perfectly for a moderate length of time. The food should be put in deep earthen or agate dishes before putting in the refrigerator, as shallow dishes take up more room all the contents are liable to spill. One-quart and two-quart glass jars or wide mouthed bottles are useful for holding milk, soup stock, stewed fruits, custards and similar fluid substances which must be kept cool. It is very desirable to have a separate compartment in the refrigerator for milk and butter.

Near the refrigerator and store closet should hang a "reminder" for the things which must be ordered from market and grocery store.

Where tea, coffee, spices and like food materials are kept in glass jars only a glance is needed to tell when a fresh supply is required. The tin boxes in which crackers, coffee and cocoa are put up should be saved after they are emptied, the labels washed off and new ones put on. The half pound baking powder cans are good for whole spices and the larger cans for articles which are used in larger quantities. It is seldom wise to keep large quantities of cereal food on hand, as it becomes rancid in a warm closet and attracts insects.

For many households it is wiser to buy flour by the bag than by the barrel, and have one bag of bread flour and another of pastry flour a third of entire wheat and smaller lots of corn and rye meals.

Every store closet should be well supplied with flavoring materials, curry powder, celery salt, beef extract and the like are exceedingly useful. A moderate store of canned foods of several varieties should be kept in readiness for emergencies.

FOR YOUR SCRAP-BOOK.

Recipes From Many Sources and of Acknowledged Worth. SCALLOPED CLAMS IN SHELL. Chop the clams very fine and season with salt and cayenne pepper. In another dish mix some powdered crackers, moistened first with warm milk, then with clam liquor, a beaten egg and some melted butter, the quantity varying with the amount of clams used; stir in the chopped clams. Wash clean as many shells as the mixture will fill, wipe and butter them; fill heaping full with the mixture, smoothing with a spoon. Place in rows in a baking pan and bake until well browned. Send to the table hot.

HORN POUT PIE.

Clean and dress the fish (always skin them) and parboil for a few minutes in fresh water; cut them up and put in a steppan with salt, pepper and butter and cook for ten minutes, and then put in a pan lined with paste, cover with the gravy in which the fish were stewed, adding rich stock if needed to make a sufficient quantity, cover with a top crust and bake.

BOHEMIAN SLEPICE.

Select a young and tender chicken and prepare as for frying or broiling. Place in a frying pan a pat of butter, and place on the fire. Beat to a smooth, thin batter two eggs, three spoonfuls of milk and a little flour, season, dip each piece of the chicken in this batter and fry a rich brown in the heated butter.

FRIED CALF'S FEET.

Wash the feet thoroughly and boil them until tender; when cooked cut them in two and remove the large bones; season with salt and pepper, dust with flour, sprinkle with finely chopped parsley and fry a light brown in butter. Serve with parsley butter sauce.

CRISP GINGER CAKE.

Three pounds of flour, one pound of sugar, one pound of butter, three table-spoonfuls of ginger. Wet the dough with molasses, roll and cook in biscuit pan in shapes to suit the fancy.

PROTECTING SONG BIRDS.

Measures Lately Adopted by the Swiss Government for This Purpose.

"Switzerland has not many feathered songsters," says James T. Dubois, consul at St. Gall, according to the New York Tribune, "but those that do exist are carefully protected, not only by law, but by the fostering care of the people, particularly the German speaking people, of Switzerland. In 1875 a law was enacted prohibiting the trapping or killing of song birds, or the robbing or molesting of their nests, in any part of the Alpine republic. But in northern Italy bird murder is epidemic, and this spirit has spread over the Swiss-Italian canton of Tessin, where the willow wren, hedge sparrow, blackcap, swallow, nightingale and little singers of all kinds are victims of the trap, the net and the gun.

"As the seasons come and go the Swiss birds make their pilgrimage north, and in going and returning across the land of northern Italy and the Swiss canton of Tessin they are mercilessly pursued by hunters of all ages and all classes. On the Lago Maggiore it is estimated that at least 60,000 of the feathered songsters are trapped or killed every year, and in the region around Bergamo, Verona, Chiavenna and Brescia many millions are indiscriminately slaughtered to satisfy the demand of the tables and of the millinery establishments of the world.

"One of the schemes is to cover the limbs of trees and the rocks, and even the telegraph wires, along the line of the bird migrations with a certain paste of such adhesive qualities that whenever the birds stop in their flight for rest or food they are held helpless captives. Hundreds are often captured in a very small space by this simple means.

"During the last year the border police of Tessin captured and destroyed 13,000 bird traps set to imprison these weary little flyers. Authorities are being urged to take the most rigorous measures to suppress the evil. The criminal courts are having many more bird violation cases than formerly, and bird catching and killing crimes which in former years were either overlooked or punished only slightly are now enforced, and the song birds of Switzerland may yet survive the attempt to exterminate them.

Pretty Parasites.

A singular class of plants is the air plant, or parasites, which do not grow with their roots in the ground or the mud, but attach themselves to trees or other plants and feed on stolen sap. Fungi and lichens, which you see growing on the bark of trees or on old wood, are parasites. The mistletoe is one of our prettiest parasites, and our Spanish moss one of the most familiar to us.

Girls Preferred.

In Germany and Holland girls are chosen in preference to young men in all employments in which they can be advantageously employed.

Prevented a Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. George Lutz of N. W. Waterville, Ohio, saved two lives. A frightful cough had kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her; and she writes, this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Bronchitis. Such cures are positive proof of its power to cure all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed. Trial bottles free at C. Blakely's drug store.

ROGERS KEPT HIS WORD.

A Promise Made When a Boy Was Faithfully Fulfilled in After Years.

Fairhaven, Mass., has a guardian angel in the person of Henry Rogers, one of the Standard Oil magnates, says the Chicago Chronicle. It was there he was born and there as a boy he earned his first money carrying newspapers. Today Fairhaven boasts of a library and a town hall—gifts outright from him—and on the principal street stands an ideal building, the Rogers store.

This structure is the fulfillment of a pledge made years ago, when Mr. Rogers was a small, serious-minded boy, who delighted to sit in the company of older people. It was in the grocery store one day that he ventured to remark that he thought Fairhaven ought to have a new school.

To those who listened a new school meant increased taxes.

"Wall," drooled out the spokesman, "I think so too; why don't you build one?"

There was a chorus of "haw, haw," as the small boy slid off the top of the barrel to the floor and then drew himself up red and blushing. "I'll do it," he said, "and I'll give some of you people the chance to put the furniture in it when it's finished."

The episode ended there. The boy grew, went to Pennsylvania and thence to Brooklyn. One day it was announced that Mr. Rogers was going to build a school in Fairhaven. When it was finished he went back. On the main street he met the seeder of his boyhood.

"I'm waiting for that furniture," he said.

The man laughed sheepishly, but said nothing.

"Never mind," Mr. Rogers went on, "I guess I'll put it in myself, but I want you to be on hand to see that I have kept my word."

ESSENCE OF LIFE.

The United States Health Report, March 1899, says: "Dr. R. C. Flower's Essence of Life is the great blood remedy of the age. It not only tonics the blood quickly, but is a powerful tonic and alterative. For all stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles it cannot be equalled." For sale in Montpelier by H. A. Slade.
