PRETTY LITTLE HOUSE DRESS

Cashmere or Soft Cloth Would Make Effective Costume for Girl of from Ten to Twelve Years.

If made in cashmere or soft cloth this would make an exceedingly nice house dress. The little skirt has an inverted plait down each side of front, and is turned up with a deep hem at the foot. One side tuck is made at each side of bodice with buttons and little loops of braid sewn on the inside. The vest is of nylon, trimmed with a band of braided material, the collar and cuffs to match.

Materials required: five yards 46 inches wide, one and one-half dozen buttons, one dozen yards braid.

Before marriage we get the cream of love and then wonder why we have to live on skimmed milk forever afterward.

FRENCH AND ENGLISH WOMEN

System of Providing a "Dot" Makes for the Independence of the Former.

Though there is far less suffrage propaganda in France, the superior position of the French woman has often been noted. If the husband keeps a shop, she keeps it, too; there is no question of her capacity for business, nor is her share in the joint business regarded as "interference." With rare exceptions it is almost impossible to imagine the English woman in a position so entirely taken for granted. But then she starts on a different basis. In France, the portionless girl would be fairly certain not to marry; from the moment of her birth, therefore, her parents set to work to provide her with a "dot." Incidentally, the "dot" system is perhaps the greatest incentive to thrift so entirely lacking in this country, says London Truth. The dowered girl goes to her husband with a certain solid backing—which proves its value in times of stress and illness—and is not only willing but prepared to work.

The average English woman, on the other hand, will be independent, but she is also romantic. And romance with her prefers the role of beggarmaid to King Cophetua. In her heart of hearts she likes her husband to "raise her to his side." She scorns romance on a business basis. Too late does he realize that the small business or professional man cannot really afford the luxury of a housekeeper. He spends on her more than he gets from her. Her value to him is one of "esteem," in a day it may be reduced to nil. The independence she hoped to increase by marrying depends entirely on her kindness or forbearance.

LEFT BABY WITH THE SAINT

Woman Chooses Unique Method of Getting Rid of Offspring Apparently Undesired.

A respectable woman, with an infant in her arms, entered the cathedral at Antwerp one morning when the priest was alone. The woman addressed him in a most earnest and affecting manner, and with due humility unfolded her tale of sorrow.

Her child, she said, was suffering from some mortal malady; the skill of the physician had been all in vain, and she was at last convinced that nothing could save her beautiful babe from the jaws of death but being placed for a moment in the arms of her tutelary saint.

The saint was stuck up in a niche of the wall with a neat balcony before him, in the form of a goodly marble statue.

The priest was at last moved by her entreaties; he procured a ladder, ascended to the sacred niche, entered the balcony, and, placing the babe in the arms of the statue, asked the grateful mother if she was satisfied. "Perfectly so," said that lady; and carefully removing the ladder she walked coolly out of the church, leaving her rosy infant, the astonished priest, and the unconscious saint all equally elevated, there to remain till the next brother of the community should arrive.

Art of Getting Votes.

A contemporary is devoting space to "Advice to Canvassers." But canvassers—much more than poets—are born. And born opportunists. A hint, however. It is the homely canvasser that gets his candidate home. Especially in the country. There is the story from Ireland of the capture of a voter. "Yes, I was agin you at first," said the voter to his visitor, "that day ye called and stood by the pig sty and talked for half an hour ye did not budge me an inch. But after you were gone, sur, I got to thinking how ye reached yer hand over the rail and scratched the pig's back till he lay down for pleasure. I decided that when a man was so sociable as that with a fellow-crathure I wasn't the bhoy to vote agin him."—London Chronicle.

Brave Rescue of Dog.

For risking his life to save a dog, Piernaster Bennett of Rhyll, Wales, has just been presented with a diploma from the P. C. A. society. A collie dog got into the water at the head of Rhyll pier, and will attempts to induce it to land were futile. Despite the darkness and a heavy tide Bennett went down one of the columns of the pier to the water's edge by means of a rope. Even then he could not reach the dog, but by another young man hanging over the pier and thus lengthening the rope, Bennett was able to reach the dog, which was in a very exhausted condition. He was in a perilous position for about three-quarters of an hour, and had to hang on by one arm to the ironwork while he lifted the dog out of the water with his other arm.

The Boy Critic.

Richard Croker, at an open-air luncheon at Palm Beach, told a George Washington story.

"A teacher," he began, "was conducting a lesson in history.

"Tommy Jones," she said, "what was there about George Washington which distinguished him from all other Americans?"

"He didn't lie," was the prompt answer."

One Instance.

Father—You never heard of a man getting into trouble by following a good example.

Son—Yes, sir, I have—the counter-felter.

There are some who are wholly unable to support the burden of joy. There is a courage of happiness as well as a courage of sorrow. It may even be true that permanent happiness calls for more strength in man than permanent sorrow.—Maeterlinck.

Benedict Arnold's Last Wish.

A New York public school teacher recently asked a pupil in her United States history class to describe the death and repentance of Benedict Arnold. She was somewhat astonished when the child, in whose mind American, British, Union and Confederate soldiers were pretty well mixed, replied: "He begged to be allowed to die in a Union suit."

First Need for Humanity.

Without tolerance, sympathy, and broad-mindedness there can be neither historical equity nor common, everyday justice and fairness, and until we get these indispensable requisites we are surely in no position to sit in judgment on our fellow-men.—Baltimore Sun.

Scared Into Sound Health.

Mr. R. F. Kelley, Springfield, Ill., writes: "A year ago I began to be troubled with kidneys and bladder, which grew worse until I became alarmed at my condition. I suffered also with dull heavy headaches and the action of my bladder was annoying and painful. I read of Foley Kidney Pills and after taking them a few weeks the headaches left me, the action of my bladder was again normal, and I was free from all distress."

J. T. Bennett,

Courtesy.

There is no beautifier of complexion, or form, or behavior, like the wish to scatter joy, and not pain, around us. 'Tis good to give a stranger a meal or a night's lodging. 'Tis better to be hospitable to his good meaning and thought and give courage to a companion. We must be as courteous to a man as we are to a picture, which we are willing to give the advantage of a good light.—Emerson.

What a Summer Cold May do.

A summer cold is just as apt to develop into bronchitis or pneumonia as at any other season. Do not neglect it. Take Foley's Honey and Tar promptly. It loosens the cough, soothes and heals the inflamed air passages, and expels the cold from the system.

J. T. Bennett.

IMPORTANT

We advertise to send of 5 ton steel frame Pitless Scale on approval. Misunderstanding a letter from Dr. W. Coumbé, who only wanted a price we will soon have a scale at Blue River, which will be sold at a reduction to save storage or reshipping. The first reasonable offer will be taken. Address

The Conservation of Nature's Resources

Applies as well to our physical state as to material thing. C. J. Budlong, Washington, R. I. realized his condition, and took warning before it was too late. He says: I suffered severely from kidney trouble, the disease being hereditary in our family. I have taken four bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy, and now consider myself thoroughly cured. This should be a warning to all not to neglect taking Foley Kidney Remedy until it is too late."

The Platitudes of Acquaintance.

An acquaintance is a being who meets us with a smile and salute, who tells us with the same breath that he is glad and sorry for the most trivial good and ill that befalls us.—Hawkesworth.

What Everybody Ought to Know.

That Foley Kidney Pills contain just the ingredients necessary to tone, strengthen and regulate the action of the kidneys and bladder.

J. T. Bennett.

An Aid to Digestion.

Take the lining of a chicken gizzard, scrub clean, then dry. Eat a small portion at a time, several times a day; it is most effective in the morning before breaking your fast. A lady troubled very much with indigestion found permanent relief after using two of these linings.—Jennie S. Potter, in National Magazine.

Glad to Recommend Them.

Mr. E. Weakley, Kokomo, Ind., says: "After taking Foley Kidney Pills, the severe backache left me, my kidneys become stronger, the secretion natural and my bladder no longer pained me. I am glad to recommend Foley Kidney Pills." In a yellow package. J. T. Bennett.

He Won't Like it There.

The man who isn't satisfied with good health and a steady job will find heaven a disappointing place.

Foley's Kidney Remedy may be given to children with admirable results. It does away with bed wetting, and is also recommended for use after measles and scarlet fever.

Johnny's Disappointment.

Suicides in the New York parks are of such common occurrence that the small children with their nurses grow to look for them. "What do you think?" a lot of a girl said to her mother, coming home from her park outing. "Johnny heard a shot, but he couldn't find the body anywhere."—Exchange.

The SIMPLEX SEPARATOR

1910 MODEL

This New Model or Improved "Simplex" is the result of thirty years' continuous experience with Cream Separators of leading makes, and eight years' experience in manufacturing "SIMPLEX" LINK-BLADE Separators. The "LINK BLADE" Device and the general bowl construction, also the original "SIMPLEX" simplicity, or in other words, minimum of working parts, has been retained; otherwise the new model has been completely redesigned from base to supply can. The most striking feature of the New "SIMPLEX" is its light running. To obtain this a higher grade and type of bearing than has ever been used before in Cream Separators, had to be used; bearings exactly the same as are used in the highest class of automobiles, the most accurate, the lightest running and the most durable ball bearings known. The vast sum spent in advertising other machines has been put into the construction of the "SIMPLEX," producing a new and higher and more expensive type than has ever been attempted either here or abroad. Cream Separator advertising and catalogues are so full of broad and exaggerated claims, mostly incapable of substantiation by test, that we prefer to base our arguments on what the "SIMPLEX" actually does in tests, and we are ready to demonstrate the entire superiority of the "SIMPLEX" against any and all makes of machines. The "SIMPLEX" can be seen at Ziegler Bros.' hardware store in Lancaster, Wis. For particulars inquire of
