

Peace Plans Fail

Rebels Reject Terms That do Not Provide for Resignation of Diaz.

WAR NOT TO END IN OLD MEXICO

Say Insurrectos Who Address Long Letter to Madero Demanding War.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 6.—"The revolutionists are determined not to make peace unless President Diaz steps down and the envoys from the government are just as stubbornly determined to keep him in power, although they are willing to make concessions otherwise. All peace negotiations with Mexico have come to an end."

These are official statements, made here today by Juan Sanchez Azcona and Attorney Jose Vaconcelos two of the commissioners to Washington named by the insurrectos. A letter signed by insurgent chiefs from all over Mexico and the United States is now being drawn up to be forwarded to Francisco I. Madero, the commander in chief of the rebel army, telling him that no peace can be made except with the withdrawal of Diaz from power.

Peace Now a Rebel Success.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The shade of striking when the iron is hot applies as well to the necessity of arranging peace in Mexico now, in the opinion of Dr. Vasquez Gomez, head of the confidential agency of the Mexican revolutionists here. Dr. Gomez pointed out that it was most opportune at present to treat for peace, but that a month from now, possibly two months, the revolution probably will have reached such a completion as to make nothing but a complete triumph and the capture of Mexico City acceptable to the revolutionist forces.

Negro Soldiers Stay in Camp.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The order transferring the Ninth cavalry, the negro regiment of the maneuver division from San Antonio, Texas, to the Mexican border for patrol duty, was rescinded late this afternoon by the war department. This action followed a conference at the White House, in which President Taft, Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army, and Representative Garner, of Texas, participated. In revoking the previous instructions, General Wood telegraphed Major General Carter, commanding the maneuver division to hold the Ninth cavalry at San Antonio and leave the Third regiment undisturbed for the present in its patrol of the border.

The change in plans, it is understood, was the result of the protest from the border towns against the assignment of the negro soldiers to duty in their vicinity.

Rebel Leader Stole Mule.

AGUA PRIETA, Mex., April 6.—"Red" Lopez, at the head of his band of rebels, today stopped at Zonteras a passenger train running from this city to Nacozari, compelling the crew to hold the train twenty minutes. The passengers were not molested. Lopez said he had learned that a warrant was out for his arrest in Douglas for stealing a mule, on which he made his escape into Mexico, and he declared that unless this warrant was withdrawn he would stop the movement of trains on the Nacozari railroad.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer. CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 6.—The state supreme court today granted a writ of mandamus asked for by the city Republican executive committee, against Mayor Holly, of Charleston and the board of affairs, compelling them to name as election commissioners the list of names recommended by the city committee.

The order in part reads: "The court is unanimously of the opinion that the purpose of the statute is to give representation to the election board to the two leading parties and that this purpose would be thwarted in this case if the writ did not go. If the committee exercise their right within a reasonable time before the election, it is the duty of the board of affairs to name those thus appointed if not otherwise objectionable."

Great Princess Irene With 1720 Passengers Helpless in Gathering Storm.

VESSEL PRISONER ON EDGE OF "GRAVEYARD"

Life Guards Patrol Shore to Begin Work of Rescue at Moments Notice.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Seventeen hundred and twelve passengers within sight of the first of the big lights which marked the finish of their transatlantic voyage, spent a sleepless night tonight on the great Princess Irene of the North German Lloyd line fast in the sands off the seaward coast of Long Island, on the edge of the "graveyard of the Atlantic" and less than 50 miles from this harbor. As night fell a high ground swell was battering the full height of the vessels superstructure.

After running her big nose in the sand during the fog this morning, the liner lay helpless throughout the day surrounded by tugs and revenue cutters; efforts to pull her free at afternoon high tide failed and because of a rough sea no transfers of passengers were attempted. Pending renewed attempts to drag her clear early tomorrow morning. If these fail, transfers will be made to the Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm, of the same line, which will be sent to the scene from her dock here soon after day break.

In Bad Condition. At low water this morning the stranded liner lay with her length of 525 feet broadside to the beach. The incoming tide, urged on with a wind which had increased to nearly 20 miles an hour rocked the vessel visibly as seen from shore. As the night wore on life guards patrolled the beach with surf boats and breeches buoy in readiness for any emergency and pinned little faith in the sturdy efforts of the tugs to pull the liner off.

Captain Goddard and six veteran life guards who went out to the Princess remained aboard all night to help reassure the more nervous passengers. On the beach Captain Charles W. Baker remained in his oil skiff with six men ready to put out a life boat or shoot a breeches buoy line if conditions required.

Although the increasing breeze came from the most undesirable quarter, the southeast, Captain Baker doubted if it would develop into a real storm and he assured the few onlookers that the liners watertight compartment would keep her dry even if the strain sprang some of her plates.

In the eighteen hours the steamer had been stuck, up to midnight, she had suffered no apparent damage, although from heavy rain and wind the hull was caught in the sand with considerable loss to port.

Although a number of boats maneuvered about the Princess no attempt was made to board her. A visiting card was cast up on the beach tonight bearing the name of "Mrs. Monroe F. Ellis" and written on the back were the names of Mrs. Anna Wey and Mrs. Taft. The identity of these passengers was not established.

not been recaptured since last November, when Thomas Cahill who conducted the saloon died. He succeeded his brother John Cahill, who died in 1908. The latter wife died about two years after her husband. They had two children, both of whom are alive. Thomas Cahill was a bachelor. Since his death the business has been in charge of the attorney for the estate who recently secured a new tenant.

The identity of the dead child is a mystery which the police and coroner have been unable to solve. An old stocking tied around its neck seems to indicate that it was strangled to death and then placed beneath the boards of the floor.

SECOND OLDEST TOWN TO LOSE IDENTITY

Democrats Elect City Ticket—Other Cities of the State Hold Elections.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer. HUNTINGTON, W. Va., April 6.—Guayandotte, the second oldest town in West Virginia, today voted by a majority of 125 to become a part of Greater Huntington. Numerous attempts have been made before to have the town adjoining Huntington on the east to be annexed to this city, but all met with failure until today. The vote was won in a hard fight by a majority of fifty, and this victory practically insures that the board of commissioners of Huntington will grant liquor licenses for that section of the city.

Several of the crew are reported to have been slightly injured in escaping from the overturned boat. The 17,000 were completely blocked the channel, a small portion of the keel remaining above the water.

Hit by Wind. The steamer Laughlin, on the way up Vesta No. 4 mine for a tow of loaded cargoes, passed lock No. 4 at 10 o'clock last night. As it reached Vesta No. 4 mine it began to rock and pitch violently in the heavy seas. Then, warning a gust blowing with cyclonic velocity struck the side of the boat and turned it completely over. All had been asleep on board except the usual night force. Few are able to account for their escape. With a heavy splash that rolled waves high on the opposite bank of the river the Laughlin's cabin and pilot house struck the water and was borne to the bottom.

Crew Came Up Like Corks. Members of the crew, like corks, rose below the surface with large bubbles that formed and burst around the overturned boat. It is believed many were washed bodily from their beds by the irush of the water and swept out to safety. When they had reached shore all reported to the captain except the cook, the chambermaid and the fireman. Their crew seeking the lights of the Laughlin suddenly go out, and hearing the roar from the boilers, the steamers Braddock and Twilight hurried to the scene, but nothing could be done. Work will begin to-day in an effort to raise the boat. The dead members of the crew are thought to be still in the boiler room.
