THE INTELLIGENCER.

WHEELING, NOVEMBER 14, 1898.

"Stealing a Legislature."

Our Charleston dispatches this morning contain an interesting and instructive interview with Chairman Dawson, of the Republican state committee, with reference to the totally unfounded charge of the Democratic organs and politicians that the Republicans propose to "steal" the legislature.

Mr. Dawson handles the matter without gloves. The evidence is not wanting that an attempt to repeat former outrages on the rights of voters are to be made. At least, circumstances mentioned by Chairman Dawson are very suspicious.

Chairman Dawson discusses also the matter of the election by the Democrats of two men whom they say are to succeed Senator Getzenbender, of the Thirtieth senatorial district, and Senator Pierson, of the Ninth, whose seats they declared vacant because they joined the Second regiment. This is the basis on which the Democratic committee claims gains in the state senate.

Chairman Dawson points out very clearly that the whole proceeding was in violation of the law; that the law expressly provides that the governor or the senate or the house only shall ascertain vacancies when they happen in the legislature, and order an election.

This law completely provides the details of the proceedings, and nowhere provides that a party campaign committee can either declare vacancies in the legislature or order elections. Such a proposition would be absurd.

Only the house or senate can do that, and the governor in times of recess. Explanation is made why the governor did not do so in this instance, but of necessity left it to the senate.

Chairman Dawson's statement is interesting at this time. It states the situation. While there is a Republican administration the Democratic effort to rob the Republicans of their victory will not succeed so well as it has in the past.

A Critic Come to Judgement. If it were a matter of any great consequence it would be alarming to note the amount of ignorance which prevails in some parts of the state regarding the manner in which Wheeling and Ohio county conduct their affairs.

The Review has a long article which actually sheds tears over the lamentable condition in Ohio county, which the editor thinks he has discovered in the official returns in the vote for county superintendent of schools.

There is much more of this sort of business, which is taken as a text for a profound lecture to the people of this city and county on the line that "the schools of the country are the hope of the Nation."

about it being "important to know that a good man should have charge of the school interests." All of which may be the gospel truth.

Thus, with a great deal more on the same line, does our brother editor of Tyler county harass his feelings over the horrible state of affairs in Ohio county, which has the best public school equipment in the state.

These votes, added to the 2,313 votes cast for county superintendent by the three county districts and three outlying voting precincts of city districts, make just 10,864 votes cast by the good people of Ohio county for the "men who have charge of the school interests."

It is a pity, in view of these facts, that our good friend wasted so much space in his denunciation of Ohio county's lack of interest in her schools.

Honor to the President. A special correspondent's description of a visit to the President shows that he is not broken down under the weight of the trying experience he has passed through in the past six months.

President McKinley has the right to look upon the expressions of the country, at the polls, as showing confidence in him, though he has never, by word of mouth, spoken on the subject.

When history is written this will be said of President McKinley. It is being said of him now throughout the country. No man, no partisan criticism can detract from the merits of the man, nor will the shafts of the future wound him in the estimation of the honest, fair-minded judgment of the country.

There are two significant statements made in a London dispatch which bear out what has been repeatedly held to be true in this country. One is that the reports of interference in the Philippines by France, Germany or Russia, are invariably traced to Spanish sources.

This latter declaration is reasonable, and it is undoubtedly authoritative, since it is well known that it is vitally important to Great Britain that no European power shall obtain a foothold in the Philippines.

This situation, connected with the statements that the visit of the German emperor to the coast of Spain has nothing to do with the Spanish-American situation, nor with his interest in the Philippines, has in it little comfort for the Spanish government or Spanish circulators of canards.

Up to the present the attitude of the European powers has not been such as to cause any apprehension in this country, and there is no more reason now for apprehension than there has been, unless some unforeseen circumstance should arise.

Senator Murphy is dying harder up in New York than Democratic leaders are in West Virginia. He refuses to concede the legislature to the Republicans until the vote of the soldiers in the field is heard from.

It will not give Murphy much comfort in the way of benefiting his ambitions for re-election to the United States senate.

Now that the election is over, and the Spanish-American peace settlement is hanging fire for a few days, Chicago, for lack of sensational news, is reviving the famous Tappott case, which was the sensation of the hour ten years ago.

HABITS AND DISEASE.

The Consequences of the Failure to Live Rightly.

One of the earliest theories of disease considers it as a direct and arbitrary visitation from God, completely beyond human control. We have now nearly outgrown that idea, but have not yet fully grasped the relations that exist between disease and its causes.

By careful hygienic and sanitary regulations, contagious and infectious diseases in the form of epidemics have in a measure been prevented.

The enjoyment of health depends entirely upon our habits of life. Each individual may prolong his life or shorten it; he may of his own volition enjoy health, or suffer from disease.

The various disagreeable symptoms called disease, should not, therefore, be regarded as enemies, to be quelled or smothered by some opiate, but should be considered as friends, warning us of the danger of some habit that has been transgressed.
