

WHY FOREIGNERS REJOICE.

HE breaking down of protection by the passage of the Bourbon Tariff bill brings joy not to England alone, but to Canada, Australia, Argentina, the British West Indies, and, in fact, to every part of the globe where poorly paid and degraded labor has heretofore been debarred from free competition with the well paid wage earners of the United States. The manufacturing industries of England, as pointed out by the London Chronicle, have received a great impetus and will soon be pouring their products across the ocean in a volume that cannot fail to drive multitudes of Americans out of employment, and compel American manufacturers either to close their mills or reduce wages to the English level.

But what brings joy to the foreigner brings impoverishment and disaster, and despair to the American farmer and wage earner. Increased imports of foreign wool mean so much less demand for American wool and the ultimate annihilation of the American wool growing industry.

Still the Foremost Issue.

Governor McKinley is right when he declares that the passage of the wreckers' tariff bill puts protection before the country as a political issue more plainly than ever before. He is also right when he asserts that Republicans should labor without cessation of energy until they have restored protection to every American product and every American wage earner, farmer and business man.

The country has waited three quarters of a year, much of the time its industries in idleness for the Democratic party to redeem its promise to give it something better than the tariff operating when the party last came into power.

A correspondent says in the Register that the officials of the Hospital for the Insane at Weston have dispensed with all means of restraint, such as straight-jackets, hand-cuffs, cribs, close room, etc. There has been a marked change for the welfare and comfort of the unfortunates.

HOW FACE THE PEOPLE.

From Cleveland's Letter to Chairman Wilson July 2, 1894. The Bill has been passed and President Cleveland's opinion of it is very readable just now. "There is no excuse for mistaking or misapprehending the feeling and the temper of the rank and file of Democracy. They are downcast under the assertion that their party FAILS IN ABILITY to manage the government, and they are apprehensive that efforts to bring about tariff reform may fail; but they are much more downcast and apprehensive in their fear that Democratic principles may be surrendered.

"Every true Democrat and ever sincere reformer knows that this bill in its present form and as it will be submitted to the conference, falls far short of the consummation for which we have long labored; for which we have suffered defeat without discouragement; which in its anticipations gave us a rallying cry in our day of triumph, and which in its promise of accomplishment is so interwoven with Democratic pledges and Democratic successes that our abandonment of the cause or the principles upon which it rests seems PARTY PERJURY AND PARTY DISHONOR.

"It must be admitted that no tariff measure can accord with Democratic principles and promises or bear a genuine Democratic badge that does not provide for free raw materials. In these circumstances it may well excite our wonder that Democrats are willing to depart from this, the most Democratic of all tariff principles, and that the inconsistent absurdity of such a proposed departure should be emphasized by the suggestion that the WOOL of the farmer be the FREE LIST, and the protection of tariff taxation be placed around the IRON ORE and COAL of CORPORATIONS and capitalists.

The Whiskey Trust makes millions by the extension of the bonded period by the Democrats from 3 to 8 years. Under the old law, distillers could keep their whisky in bond for three years before paying the tax of 90 cents a gallon. Now they can keep it eight years or five years longer. At six per cent. on their money, and not compounding it, the distillers gain 27 cents in interest on the extension period and only pay 20 cents for the privilege, the new tax being $1.10. As a matter of fact, however, by active use of their money there is a net gain to them of double that amount, which is presented as a free gift. What was the consideration paid by the Whisky Trust?—Journal.

It is a sad commentary on the vicissitudes of the lives of some literary men that the late Geo. R. Graham recently died in Philadelphia, practically in obscurity and poverty. About the only thing he owned was a lot in Laurel Hill cemetery, where he was buried. Yet this man was the founder of "Graham Magazine," and passed upon the earlier productions of Bryant and Poe. This magazine was the leading literary periodical of its time, made so chiefly under the editorship of that erratic but brilliant literary genius, Edgar Allan Poe. Graham was quick to discern what other men admitted later, that Poe was one of the greatest literary artists this country has ever produced.—Ex.

A correspondent says in the Register that the officials of the Hospital for the Insane at Weston have dispensed with all means of restraint, such as straight-jackets, hand-cuffs, cribs, close room, etc. There has been a marked change for the welfare and comfort of the unfortunates. Attendants are required to give them closer attention, and the unfortunates appear more cheerful and happy.

The Clarksburg fair promises to be one of the most successful they have held for many years. September 4, 5 and 6. Come, and bring your farm products.

Do you have headache, dizziness, drowsiness, loss of appetite, and other symptoms of biliousness? Hood's Sarsaparilla will cure you.

Disappointed.

To the Editor of the N. Y. Sun. (Dem.)—SIR: This is what I voted for when I voted the National Democratic ticket: 1. As little law as possible consistent with good order. 2. A tariff for revenue, to meet the expenses of the Government economically administered. 3. Against protection and protected trusts. 4. Against sectionalism—the Force bill. 5. Against class legislation—the Force bill.

This is what I get: 1. Plenty of law in the income tax, especially in its collection. 2. A tariff for protection and a Government regardless of economy. 3. Protection and protected trusts. 4. Sectionalism, in the income tax. 5. Class legislation, in the income tax. Where am I?

Reached the End.

The Index has at all times opposed the putting of such West Virginia products as wool, coal, lumber and oil upon the free list, and in contending for a tariff upon these articles we have incurred the rank displeasure of the extreme wing of the party. We offer no apology for our course. Had we to live it over, under the same circumstances, we would contend more strongly for our views, because we believe they are right, and we are firmly of the opinion that the policy advocated by us is the true Democratic policy, and the more popular one with the people. A majority of Democratic opinions seem to be against our view, and further discussion of the subject will be of no good to the party, and like a true organ we must submit to the will of the majority. We have reached the end of our line. Gentlemen, here is our hat.—Fairmont Index.

The Republican press and speakers are entirely justified in denouncing the failure of the Democratic party to carry out its pledges of tariff reform. Not in the history of the country has there been a more shameful betrayal of a public trust. Not in the history of partisan politics has there been such blundering, viewing the question from the level of expediency.—Pittsburgh Post.
