MADAME PETROVA TELLS HER IDEA

STAR IN "WHITE PEACOCK" BELIEVER IN ECONOMIC INDEPENDENCE OF WOMAN

Was Formerly A Reporter On A London Paper—She Likes Movie Acting

(BY CAROLYN GORDON)

"I like reporters," said Madame Petrova. This sounded like a good start so we gripped our pencil and leaned forward in order to hear what the star of "The White Peacock" had to say in behalf of the Fourth Estate. But it turned out to be a case of a purple cow after all. She'd rather see than be one.

Sixteen years ago Olga Petrova (we forgot to ask her if that was the name she went by then) was a cub reporter on the London Tribune. Cub isn't the right word. We gathered that a brand new word was needed to define her status, as women reporters were scarce in those days. Anyhow Madame Petrova (although in those days she was Mademoiselle) worked very hard on general assignments for several years and was later promoted to doing "night police" in the Bow street police court. She climbed to still greater journalistic heights, however, and finally became dramatic critic for the Tribune.

Her Big Idea

"I had great fun telling how good—or bad—Sir Henry Irving was for a pound a week," she said. "It was I who got the pound, not Sir Henry. I might still be writing dramatic reviews but unfortunately—or fortunately—I got ideas and as I couldn't persuade any editor to publish them for me I took to the stage in order to make enough money to get my ideas published."

"And at heart I am still more writer than actor. I am an optimist—an egoist, if you will, but with me the idea is paramount."

Here we respectfully queried what the idea was. Madame arched her expressive brows and leaned forward with eyes sparkling. "The idea" she said "is the ultimate economic independence of woman. It is the one thing in which I am most interested. It is the fundamental thesis which underlies everything I write. In 'The White Peacock' I have tried to show a modern woman who is strong enough to control her own destiny."

It developed later in the interview that Madame Petrova thinks that most present day writers in the last analysis emphasize the subservience of woman. "It seems to me" she said earnestly "that they merely show us the problem and leave it unsolved. Ibsen did that. I am a great admirer of Ibsen's, but I have tried to make Yvette take up life where his Norah, of the Doll's House left it."

A Gorgeous Brain

We had always liked Madame Petrova in the movies, but we liked her even better when she was talking about her big idea. She has, if the term is permissible, a very intellectual cast of countenance. We remembered that some weeks ago her advance agent had informed us that she had a "gorgeous brain." At the time we wondered just what variety of brain that was, but since seeing its possessor we have decided that the term was not far wrong. Madame Petrova has a very active brain, which emits some interesting sparks.

"And now" she said "Did you want to ask me some questions?" We remembered that on the way to the hotel we had intended to ask some of the stock interview questions, calculated to elicit startling answers, but somehow we couldn't think of them. So after a few deep thoughts we fell back on "which do you like better—the movies or the spoken drama?"

"The movies. You see I am not concerned with the technique. I want to get my ideas across, and the movie radius is wider. I can impress my opinions on thousands of people all over the world through the movies, whereas in the spoken drama I can only reach a few hundreds at a time."

TO RETURN RECALL PETITIONS TODAY

Amended petitions for the recall of the eleven members of city council and City Manager Homer C. Crago will be returned to the office of City Clerk Howard C. Lane today, it was stated last evening. Noyes, checking up the amendments, which include the addition of several hundred names of additional voters who have signed petitions since the petition was certified by City Clerk Lane as insufficient nine days ago.

City Clerk Lane has given to the press absolutely no indication of what his next certificate concerning the sufficiency of the petitions may be expected to be.

MISS ALICE MANN

There will not be a large number of West Virginians to go from Washington to Newport News, Va., to attend the launching of the battleship West Virginia, Saturday. The event has not created the interest among them that was expected, nor anything like the interest in the launching of the cruiser West Virginia, eighteen years ago, at the same place. It is probable that the fact that this new battleship is destined for the scrap pile before any more work of consequence is done on it is responsible for the lack of interest shown in the launching, and it is also likely that the general exodus of West Virginians in the Capital to New York a week from Saturday to see the Army Navy game is a contributing factor.

Mr and Mrs. Isaac T. Mann and family and a party of intimate friends will attend the launching. Miss Alice Mann, who is to be introduced to Washington society Thanksgiving Day, is to have the honor of christening the new battleship. Of the state's congressional delegation, Congressman and Mrs. Wells Goodykoontz and Congressman and Mrs. Leonard S. Echols have announced that they will be present when the big battleship's hull slides down the ways.

COINCIDENCE IN DEATHS OF KIRKWOOD FAMILY DESCENDANTS

ONE DIES AT MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK OTHER AT VINELAND, N. J., ON THE SAME DAY

Rev. Kirkwood Alexander Died in Vineland—James Porter Allen in Maryland

Two descendants of the Kirkwood family, one of the pioneer families of Eastern Ohio, and for whom the town of Kirkwood was named, died Thursday one at Mountain Lake Park, Maryland, and the other at Vineland, N. J.

Rev. Kirkwood Alexander, aged about 70 years, for many years a minister of the Presbyterian church, with charges in Iowa, died at a hospital in Vineland where he has been living retired for a number of years. He had not visited Wheeling for more than twenty years, but there are many in the local vicinity who will remember him. He leaves to survive his widow, two daughters, Elberta and Ellen, and, two brothers, James and Henry of Moundsville.

James Porter Allen, aged 89 years, of Cumberland, Md., passed away at his home after being stricken with paralysis a half hour before. For many years he was connected with the Seeble & Barker company of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Allen was a son of David Allen and a grandson of Colonel Robert Kirkwood of Revolutionary fame, and one of the founders of Ohio. He was born in St. Clairsville, and is survived by one son, James Gillespie Allen, with whom he made his home.

Both men were descendents of the Gillespie, Kirkwood and Alexander families, and their deaths on the same day is a peculiar coincidence.

The boy ran out of the way of one truck directly into the path of the one which knocked him down, it is said. Dr. John T. Carter gave the boy medical attention.

Why Can't You, Too, Be Well and Strong?

FEW of us realize how precious good health is until we begin to lose it. To be well is to enjoy life and make good times for those around us. To be constantly ailing is to miss life's pleasures and to look with envy upon our robust friends and neighbors.

Are you one of the unfortunates?

Is your health slowly slipping away? It's time, then, you looked to your kidneys!

Much sickness of today is traceable to kidney weakness. Its increase is alarming. That's because it's usually unseen or neglected.

But it's easy to tell if your kidneys are weak. You may have only backache; a lameness, stiffness, or sharp stabbing pains; dizzy spells, headaches, or annoying bladder irregularities.

If you have these symptoms, suspect your kidneys! Remember that delay may result in serious kidney sickness.

But why dwell on the dark picture?

Rather think of the brighter side!

To remedy such a weakness is to add years to your life and to regain the health and strength that enables you to enter life's daily battle with joy and enthusiasm.

If you've reason to suspect your kidneys, read the stories of these Wheeling people. They tell how they won back good health through Doan's Kidney Pills, the world's best-recommended kidney remedy. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Wheeling People

C. H. Alvey, grocer, 122 18th St., says: "My kidneys got out of order and I had a soreness and dull aching across the small of my back that made it hard for me to stoop. My kidneys didn't act right, so I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved the trouble. The backache left and my kidneys have not troubled me since."

Mrs. W. McManus, 251½ Jacob St., says: "My kidneys were in a weak and disordered condition. When I did my washing or house cleaning, I got such awful pains across my kidneys I often had to stop and rest. There wasn't hardly any let-up to those terrible backaches. I became run down, weak and nervous and my head ached a great deal. My kidneys acted too often so I used Doan's Kidney Pills from the Hoge-Davis Drug Co., and I have never had anything do me as much good. I soon felt like a different person and I depend on Doan's when I have any return of the trouble."
