FEW PENNIES IN BUTTE.

No One Likes Them, and They All Drift to the Postoffice.

A twelve quart pail will hold all the pennies in Butte.

In the money drawer or cash register of nearly every business house in Butte there is a tin box back in one corner, and in it are pennies. When the box is full the merchant puts it under his arm and climbs the hill to the new postoffice, unloads his accumulation and carries home stamps for it.

When a child comes into a store and buys and proffers pennies in payment the pennies are forthwith cast into the little box.

As a general thing the pennies given out in change in the postoffice seldom get outside the building. Before leaving the building the owner of the pennies decides that he or she would rather have stamps for them, and the exchange is made.

So the pennies in circulation in Butte hover about the postoffice. Once in awhile an arrival from the east scatters them among several stores, but eventually the little disks find their way to the postoffice. The stores do not make change in pennies in Butte. Some use postage stamps.

It has not been so long since pennies have been given out in change at the postoffice. Two or three years ago a man bought a money order at the Butte postoffice. He had 2 cents in change coming to him, but there were no pennies with which to pay it. He complained to the postoffice department at Washington, and then came an order directing that a supply of pennies be obtained and change made.

Since then there has been pennies in Butte, Helena and most of the larger offices in Montana. But the merchant as a general thing has little use for pennies, and it will probably be a long time before they come into circulation in that part of the northwest.

There are no penny newspapers in Montana. Children always have a nickel to buy candy, sometimes more. There are no penny values shown for sale in that city.

The merchants think the pennies a nuisance. The public look at the matter in the same light, and if it had not been for a disgruntled buyer of a money order who failed to appreciate that if the 2 cents had been coming the other way nothing would have been said about it the probabilities are that pennies would be fewer in Butte and other Montana cities than they are today.—Butte Letter in New York Herald.

A Fitting Reply.

Major Lomax of the United States army was visiting in Canada soon after the war of 1812. He was entertained in Quebec by the officers of one of the royal regiments.

After dinner speeches and toasts being in order, one of the British officers, having imbibed too generously of the champagne, gave as a toast, "The President of the United States, Dead or Alive!" The toast was accepted with laughter.

Major Lomax rose to respond, saying, "Permit me to give as my toast, 'The Prince Regent, Drunk or Sober!'" The British officer sprang instantly to his feet and in angry tones demanded, "Sir, do you intend that remark as an insult?"

To which Major Lomax calmly answered, "No, sir; as the reply to one."

A Relief.

Husband—Darling, I believe that I am failing.

Wife (in alarm)—Gracious! How often I have warned you, George, against your foolish speculations!

Husband—I don't mean in business, dear; I mean I'm failing in health.

Wife (relieved)—Oh, is that all?
