ONLY ONE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR.

THE public would have more respect for men who have been affiliated with the Republican party in the past, but who intend to vote for Frank Keeney's candidate if they did not so ostentatiously parade their Republicanism. The way in which they talk about it, the stress which they put upon the purity of their motives and the sterling character of their party loyalty, indicates that they are not at all easy in their minds about it, and their pose does not in the least deceive any one.

And no wonder. Judge MORGAN is the only Republican candidate for governor in this state. His title to the nomination is as clear as was that of any other man who ever ran for the same office on the Republican ticket in West Virginia, and Republicans who are withholding from him their support are endangering the whole Republican situation in this state without the least justification.

As far as the national ticket is concerned the elec-

RUFF STUFF

Henerie Pueyrredon, Argentine foreign minister, and Benito Villanueva, president of the senate, have called off their arrangements to fight a sword duel to settle some little differences of opinion.

Guess they couldn't find any words that wanted to cut into a couple of "ole" lines like Pueyrredon and Villanueva.

The seconds have turned the matter over to Ernesto Bossa for settlement, while President Trigo-ven does not approve of the duel.

That noise in the back room, meant, is one of the linotype machines talking to itself while this is being set.

One of the first efforts of the league of nations should be to give out suitable nicknames for a flock of sword-swallowing nobility.

Our private secretary forgot to arouse us from our after-dinner nap last night in time to attend the style show. Our luck, as usual, if it was raining soup we would have no weapon but a fork ready for use.

tion is over and the Republican party's effort to restore the government at Washington to the people is successful. But here in West Virginia these are grave doubts. Republican National Chairman Hays yesterday for the first time said that West Virginia would be in the Republican column after the election, but much allowance must be made for the claims of a campaign manager. Every other estimate, especially those made by the better informed political reporters, places the state in the doubtful column.

And it is going to stay there and perhaps land on the other side when the votes are counted unless we get over the nonsense that a man can be for Frank Keeney and his fellow radicals and the Republican party at the same time. Those fellows do not care a fig what happens to Harding and the Republican party. Indeed many of them probably would like to see Cox elected inasmuch as Debs is out of the question. The man they are running for governor has a sentimental interest in the fortunes of the Republican candidate for president, but his bosses are more vitally concerned with matters closer at home, and if they did not hope to get a few votes by permitting their man to parade his personal friendship for Harding they would order him to take some other course. They do hope to gain by the friendship to Harding pose. They expect by it to split the Republican party wide open in West Virginia. They know that is all that is necessary to enable them to get control of the state government, because the Democratic state ticket ceased to be a factor in the campaign weeks ago.

If they succeed it will be many a long day before the Republicans of West Virginia again get within striking distance of putting a man in the executive office at Charleston. Republicans who talk about themselves as thoroughbred Republicans but intend to vote for Frank Keeney's candidate for governor had better remember that.

VITAMINES.

VITAMINES are elements of diet as essential as proteins, fats, carbohydrates and mineral salts. Yet nobody knows what they are. As Professor Eddy puts it in "The Teachers' College Record" for March, "Today we know they are; we don't what they are. We know some of the things they do and don't do, we know many substances. But their actual chemical nature is as much a puzzle today as the day of their discovery."

One of the substances is called "fat-soluble A." It is present in milk and butter, though not in lard; and rats, guinea pigs and other creatures cannot grow on a diet from which it has been extracted.

A second called "water-soluble B," is contained in milk, in the hulls or polishings of rice, in yeast, in beans, in sheep's pancreas. The lack of it causes the disease known as beri-beri or polyncuritis.

The third called "water-soluble C," is necessary to prevent scurvy. It also is found in milk, though pasteurizing destroys it. Bottle-fed babies get it in orange-juice, but canned tomato juice would do as well.

These, of course, are not the only sources of these three vitamins. The ordinary diet of adults contains enough of all of them. But babies not fed at the breast may miss one or another if care is not taken.

In some conditions, as in marasmus, a baby cannot assimilate a vitamin from one thing in which it is present, but can from another.

All this has been worked out since 1911 by different workers in different countries. Science knows no national boundaries.

The entertainment given last night by the Business and Professional Woman's club was a splendid success, both from the artistic and attendance viewpoints. That it should be all that it was as an entertainment was to have been expected and the drawing power of it was due largely to the fact that considerable care was taken to offer a novelty. Too often the managers of amateur amusement enterprises forget that a little application of brains helps a lot in getting out a crowd.

An important step forward in an industrial way was taken last evening when a Traffic club was organized at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce. Those who are familiar with such matters have long contended that Fairmont and the whole upper Monongahela valley is not being treated fairly in the matter of freight rates. When the shippers have worked out a plan to get together and unite upon a Fairmont transportation policy they probably will be able to pry that condition loose, and if they can they will effect a saving of many thousands of dollars for the people of this city.

Judging by what the newspapers are saying, there is marked falling off in popular interest in the world baseball series this year. But there are always a lot of people who care comparatively little for baseball but who go there to see the crowd and to be able to say that they were present at a notable occasion. The real effect of the disclosures of crookedness in baseball will be felt next season when the regular season opens. Unless the magnates are able to cook up something in the mean time to lull public suspicion organized baseball is in for a bad season next year.

The political campaign is in its last month now. Those who have been promising themselves to do something for their party had better get busy.

A fellow in Pittsburgh yesterday asked his wife if she wanted to go to heaven, and then he shot her dead before she could answer. That's what you would call an exaggerated example of taking too much for granted.

You Tell 'em, Nick. Nicholas Longworth says there can be no mistaking the cause of the results of the Maine election, admitting he spoke in all the congressional districts of the state. We don't care how it came about—just so it came about right.

Taking the "Ticks" Out of Politics

The Times advertises that it is going to print a series of articles on the league of nations written in an "imperial" way.

A la Woodrow? Demmie Chairman Cox says his party will carry Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and New Jersey.

Hello! Lot of comfort in that for the Demmies. On the basis of what the best informed political reporters are saying about the campaign Harding would still have a majority of about 70 in the electoral college.

If Cox were to carry all the states White claims, and all the states every one is willing to concede him, and all the states that the political reporters class as doubtful he would still be beaten by 14 electoral votes.

And that would be a reasonably decisive election. Might even convince the West Virginia Non Partisans that no skulduggery had been practiced.

day attending to some executive matters.

His devotion to duty is truly touching. But the Ohio taxpayers should cheer up.

After the second of next month Coxey will have plenty of time to catch up with his job of being governor.

There is an ominous quietness about the way the local Democratic campaign is being managed. But maybe they have a big deal on and are working out the details.

AS IT LOOKS TO ME

By THE INSIDE MAN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—I saw a picture called "The Right to Love." The title was misleading. It was a bit of propaganda against Englishmen as a cruel and heartless husband mistreating an American girl. It showed the Englishman reprimanding his child for wearing American colors, calculated to make an audience hiss.

Whether this is deliberate propaganda or boneheadedness on the part of the men who edit the scenarios, makes no difference in the result. Prohibitionists and progressives will be glad to see Daniel Garret, Houston, Texas, return to Congress. Garret formerly Congressman-at-large, was defeated by failure to return to Texas in 1914 to make a campaign when President Wilson was keeping Congress busy, but in 1916 was reelected. When the state was redistricted and Garret ran against Eagle in the eighth district and was defeated. Eagle retired this time. Garret ran against Harry V. Fisher world war veteran, and won.

I had a talk here a few months ago with Ray Schalk, Sox catcher. He was bitterly opposed to the gamblers, but was opposed to being quoted. "Kid" Gleason was also afraid to appear in print. These men have so far come through the investigation clean, but they aren't a measure to blame for not being fanatics in denouncing openly the serpent they recognized to be striking in a deadly manner at the national pastime.

These troubles originate in the blood, and if you expect real sub- stantial relief you must treat them through the blood. The best remedy for this purpose is S.S.S., the fine old blood remedy that purifies the blood of disease germs, and thus restores the skin to a normal and healthy condition.
